THAW REPORT HELD UP BOARD IS DIVIDED?

Great Excitement at New York Court While Judge and Lunacy Commissioners Hold Secret Session---Evelyn and Mrs. William Thaw in Tears---Rumor of Adverse Report.

NEW YORK, April 4.—Because the commissioners in lunacy appointed to inquire into the sanity of Harry K. Thaw were not able to make their report this forenoon to Justice Fitzgerald, the jury was excused until 2 o'clock, when court convened to-day at 11:30.

All morning Thaw, his relatives and lawyers waited in great anxiety for the report of the commission which was to say whether his fate would be decided by a jury or whether he was to be a prisoner in a madhouse.

No accused man ever awaited a verdict with more tense feeling than did Thaw, who was detained in an ante-room. He could not understand the delay. He kept asking his sentinels about it constantly. His nerves were keyed to the highest pitch.

The rumor flitted about that the commission was divided. It was even said that the majority report was to the effect that Thaw is sane. After the adjournment of court Justice Fitzgerald retired to his private room. It was said that he had received the two reports, and that he would announce which one he would accept at 2 o'clock.

Commissioners Divided?

Another report was that Dr. Putzel believed Thaw insane, while the other two members of the commission thought him sane. The Justice wanted to get if possible a unanimous verdict. That caused the delay, according to this report.

It was apparent that information of a disquieting nature had been received by Mrs. William Thaw, Evelyn Nesbit Thaw and the Countess of Yarmouth, for all showed that they had been weeping when they appeared in a corridor outside of the court room.

The cause of their grief could not be ascertained. There was a rumor that they had been privately informed that a report of a majority of the commission would declare Thaw insane. This was denied by one of Thaw's lawyers.

Mother, Wife, Sister in Tears.

Mrs. William Thaw, it is said, gave way to a violent outburst of grief while waiting in an anteroom to be admitted into the courtroom. In this she was joined by her daughter and daughter-in-law. To enter the courtroom they were obliged to traverse the main corridor. It was then that the evidence of their grief became visible to the throng.

Dan O'Reilly said:

"I believe the commission has unanimously agreed upon the vital point as to whether Thaw is legally able to confer with counsel."

According to one of the alienists the defence will be better pleased if the report of the commission is a divided one.

"If the report be divided," he said, "it would raise the point that there existed at this time in the minds of the three learned men appointed to make the investigation a doubt as to the actual condition of Thaw. If this doubt existed in the minds of these commissioners it would undoubtedly affect the jury.

"There is no doubt in my mind that a man sitting in judgment in a case of this sort would weigh that fact in favor of the defendant. A unanimous report would settle once and for all the question of his sanity and a member of the jury would then possibly feel no scruples against the prisoner."

Judge Sends Jury Away.

When the jury was brought in at 11:30 Thaw was called to his seat at the counsel table, and the clerk began to call the roll of the jurymen.

"Gentlemen of the jury, I am going to discharge you until 2 o'clock this afternoon," said Justice Fitzgerald. After warning the members of the jury not to speak of the case, court adjourned.

Justice Fitzgerald retired to his private chambers. It is a recognized fact that Justice Fitzgerald is one of the most conservative and one of the most precise and careful men sitting on the Supreme Court bench, and it is intimated that Justice Fitzgerald excused the jury until 2 o'clock of his own volition, in order to give himself an opportunity to decide which report he will accept. It is optional with the Judge to accept either the majority or minority report, as his conscience dictates.

APPLY FOR INJUNCTION ON STRIKERS

Employers Cause Garment Worker Leaders to Be Cited Into Court.

Two of the employing firms involved in the garment workers' strike applied to-day to the Superior Court, only motion session, for an injunction to restrain the strikers from what the plaintiffs allege is picketing, intimidation, visitation, interference with the plaintiffs' business and general conspiracy to keep people from working who otherwise would.

In answer to the petition, Judge Schofield to-day issued an order of notice, returnable to-morrow, against the United Garment Workers of America, Cutters' Local No. 26, Pressers' Local No. 12, Garment Makers' Local No. 15, Special Operators Jacob Goldstein and Barnacy Ertel and all officers and members of the various unions here, citing them into court to-morrow, to show cause why an injunction should not issue against them.

The two petitioners for the injunction are the M. & C. Skirt Company of No. 87 Summer street, and Abrams & Co.

The plaintiffs declare that the defendants have created a public nuisance by striking some of the employes, and, furthermore, that though the firms have entered into contract with some employes to remain there with steady work till July, 1907, these employes are now afraid to go to work on account of this conspiracy.

Over 1,000 of the 1,400 members of the Skirt and Garment Workers' Union who have returned to work have voted to increase the assessment of the members now working from 10 to 20 per cent. This is for the benefit of the 600 members who are still out on the strike.

The executive committee are planning to hold a big mass meeting at Faneuil Hall, Saturday night.

YOUTH SLAYS GIRL WHO SPURNED HIM

TURNS REVOLVER ON SELF IN AN ELEVATED WAITING ROOM—NOW AT HOSPITAL.

Lying in a serious condition at the City Hospital from his self-inflicted wound, Walter Stock, a well known Roxbury man, aged twenty-six, expresses his pleasure at the double crime he committed last night, when he shot Miss Agnes Bates of No. 778 Parker street, Roxbury, to death in the waiting room of the Boston Elevated Railroad at Roxbury Crossing and then put a bullet through his own neck. Stock, who is believed to be insane, has been placed under arrest on a charge of murder, and will be arraigned on that charge in the Roxbury Police Court, if he recovers.

Two years ago Miss Bates made the acquaintance of Stock at a Roxbury provision store where he was employed as a meat cutter, and they soon were close friends. Miss Bates was employed in the Roxbury cotton factory and Stock was a frequent caller at the home of her mother, No. 11 Oregon street.

The neighbors expected a wedding to result, but, for weeks ago, the parents of Miss Bates learned that she was keeping company with Stock and, because he was a Protestant and they were Catholics, forbade her to encourage his attentions. The girl refused to break with Stock at the time and left her home to board at No. 778 Parker street. Sunday evening Miss Bates informed Stock that she no longer could keep company with him, as she was tired of living away from home and wanted to return to her parents. It is said that she told him she could not return home again unless they parted. This angered Stock, and he told her, it is said, that he would under no consideration give up her company.

Waited for Girl at Crossing.

Last night, at 5:45, they met in the Roxbury Crossing waiting room of the Elevated Road.

After a short conversation Stock and Miss Bates exchanged fiery words, when suddenly Stock, his eyes bulging with frenzy, drew a revolver from his coat pocket, and without a word of warning fired three shots point blank at the heart of his sweetheart. As she fell bleeding to the floor, faintly gasping "Why did you do it, Walter?" the jealous youth attempted to make the tragedy a double one by killing himself. The waiting room was crowded with men, women and children, all of whom were thrown into a panic.

When Sergeant O'Neil of Station 10 reached the scene Miss Bates's life was fast ebbing away, while Stock was still conscious. In his hand he still held the smoking revolver.

Examination showed that Miss Bates was suffering from bullet wounds in the right shoulder and on the left side of the head.

The last wound caused death.

While waiting for the ambulance Stock made no attempt to hide his crime. He acknowledged to Sergeant O'Neil that he had loved Miss Bates, and when he learned that she was keeping company with another man he decided to end all for both.

When he came to the form of the girl he loved dying before him he wept bitterly.

Tells Police His Reason.

At the City Hospital Patrolman Hartnett of Division 10 was stationed at Stock's death bedside with a stenographer. Stock stated that Miss Bates and he were lovers and that she had promised to marry him, but that there came a difference of religion, which caused her to retract her promise. Then, Stock claimed, she went with another man.

Stock told the police that yesterday noontime in his meal hour he went to a pawnshop on Tremont street and purchased a revolver. Last evening he quit work at the usual time, and on leaving his store went to the crossing. Here he waited for Miss Bates.

FIFTEEN DIE IN 'FRISCO FIRE

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., April 4.—Fifteen Italian laborers are believed to have lost their lives in a fire which destroyed a three-story frame lodging house early to-day. There were between 25 and 30 persons asleep in the building when the fire started. Eighteen or 20 jumped from windows to escape the fire and nearly all were injured, 12 being seriously injured. Most of the injured have broken arms and legs. Fifteen are missing. All are men but one, the wife of the proprietor of the place. Their bodies are supposed to be in the ruins.

300 HOUSES FALL IN QUAKE

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 4.—A dispatch from the Rev. Royal M. Cole, head of the American mission at Bitlis, Turkish Armenia, says:

At 10 o'clock in the forenoon of March 29 there burst upon us unannounced the worst earthquake witnessed in forty years in those or the Erzerum volcanic regions. Such was its force that our city seemed to be in the jaws of some monster who would shake us into shreds, as a mastiff does his game.

There have been altogether twenty-eight shocks. Of the 1,000 houses here over 300 have fallen, and half the remainder have been seriously damaged about $50 to $500 being needed to repair each house.

THE WEATHER.

Showers late to-night and slightly warmer. Friday, showers. Light to fresh variable winds.

High tide—3:23 a. m., 3:55 p. m.

Sun rises—5:23; sets, 6:13.

PEASANTS RISE IN RUSSIA TO AID ROUMANIA

ST. PETERSBURG, April 4.—Strong detachments of Russian troops are to-day being rushed to the Roumanian frontier by General Kaulbars, in command of the forces at Odessa.

The orders were issued to-day, owing to the rising of the Russian peasants on the frontier in aid of the Roumanian rebels, and the troops will take drastic measures to restore order.

ELECTRICAL MEN MEET.

Local 129, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, hold their semi-monthly meeting in Arcade Hall to-night.

GRAFT CHARGE IS EXPLAINED BY GILLESPIE

Daniel H. Gillespie, superintendent of the sanitary department of the city of Boston, denies that there was any graft in connection with the purchase of two second-hand dumping scows from Daily & Evans, New York contractors, for $31,000. Mr. Gillespie says it is ridiculous to say that a new scow similar to those bought, can be secured for $15,000 or that a second-hand one can be purchased for $5,000.

It is charged that the scows were in service at New York a long time before they came to Boston and that they had been out of commission and tied up at Newtown Creek for several years when they were purchased for the Boston Sanitary Department.

CHIEF SHAW OF STATE POLICE DIES IN LYNN

Succumbs to Heart Failure at His Home After Two Weeks' Illness.

Joseph E. Shaw, chief of the State police, died at his home on Beacon Hill avenue, Lynn, at 2.20 a. m. to-day from heart failure. He had been confined to his home about two weeks, but for several months had not been feeling well.

Until a successor to Chief Shaw is appointed the State force will be in charge of Deputy Chief George C. Neal.

The funeral will take place on Sunday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock at the Congregational Church in Lynn, which Mr. Shaw attended. The State police will attend in a body.

Mr. Shaw was born in Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, in 1845, and came to the United States when a young man. He worked for several years in the shoe factories of Lynn and its vicinity, and when the Civil war broke out he enlisted and fought until the end of the struggle. He participated in some of the great battles of the war and was commended for gallantry in action.

He took an active part as a leader in the big Lynn shoe strike in 1870.

Rose From Police Ranks.

Soon after peace was declared he began his police career. He joined the State force as a detective, became deputy fire marshal under Fire Marshal Whitcomb, took charge of the fire investigating department when Mr. Whitcomb was removed and the department made a division of the State police force, and when Rufus B. Wade, chief of the State force died, Mr. Shaw was chosen to take his place.

As a detective Mr. Shaw figured in some of most important criminal cases, among them the mystery surrounding the murder of Lila Hoyle of Webster, which was solved as a result of his work.

In Many Famous Cases.

After he became chief he had charge of the work of investigating the noted "plug ugly case," which resulted in the arrest of George Orange Lee Perry, the negro who died from typhoid fever while in the East Cambridge jail awaiting trial for several murders. He directed the work of the officers who arrested Jane Toppan, the famous poisoner, who admitted that she was responsible for the deaths of thirty-one persons, and took a prominent part in the investigation of the murder of Mabel Page of Weston, for which Charles Tucker was electrocuted.

Chief Shaw was a member of Post 10, G. A. R., Lynn, was a Mason and an Odd Fellow, and was prominently identified with the important social clubs of Lynn.

He is survived by a widow.

CHICAGO GAS MEN QUIT.

CHICAGO, April 4.—Building operations all over the city may be tied up as a result of the strike of union gas fitters which began Monday morning, and which broke out afresh yesterday when the employers finally refused to grant the demands.

STRIKE-BREAKER ADAMS TO WAR ON TEAMSTERS

Police Guard Increased, but Union Men Maintain Best of Order Everywhere.

To a professional strike-breaker, Walter Adams, who works somewhat after the methods pursued by the famous Farley, has been given the contract to break the strike of Boston teamsters against seven large trucking firms. Already the strike-breaker has twenty-five men here, he says, and will have two hundred more by Saturday.

Under this stimulus the Master Teamsters succeeded in getting out more teams and are making efforts to deliver their goods. Police guards follow the teams to prevent trouble.

The strike leaders are confident of success, and say that Adams will accomplish nothing.

Refuse to Load Brine Teams.

Eight employes of the Revere Sugar Refinery Company in Cambridge announced that they had quit work to-day when they were ordered to load H. S. Brine's teams driven by non-union men. For a while operations at the warehouse were suspended. Finally the men were informed that they wouldn't have to load any more Brine teams and they went back to work.

To-day all the teams are escorted as far as Craggie bridge by a detail of Cambridge officers and there turned over to the Boston police.

Three strike-breakers who were taken in the stable of J. B. Hilliard & Son in South Boston to-day were suddenly driven away in a carriage. The teams were ready for them to take out, but no more was made after the men arrived.

Boast of Victories.

Walter Adams, the strike-breaker who believes that he will be able to break this one as he has others, had a conference with Secretary Stebbins of the Master Teamsters' Association to-day and at the conclusion announced that he was ready to take hold.

"I shall have fifty men each from Worcester, Fall River, New Bedford and New York by Saturday or Monday," he said to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter. "I have never lost a strike yet, and I have been through a number of them. Most of the men I shall bring here are colored and experienced drivers. I am particularly anxious to win this strike as it will be my first failure if I lose it."

At all of the stables to-day there were increased police guards, who carefully watched the work of getting out the teams.

Increase Mounted Police.

The force of mounted police has been increased in the business district to prevent the congestion of traffic by teamsters who obstruct the passage of teams driven by strike-breakers.

Manager Pote of the Fide4, Richardson Company admitted to-day that some of his customers had left him because he was unable to move their freight promptly. "If the strikers win it will be due to the selfishness of some Boston merchants," Mr. Pote said. "When the strike was first called of our people told us to go ahead and fight the union. Five hours after the strike had started one of them complained that if we couldn't move his goods he would have to get somebody who could. There have been others. That's the trouble we are up against."

Nearly all of the seven firms who were struck and Dunbar, Smith & Hopkins, who lost most of their union men yesterday, moved some teams during the early hours.

Seek Union Membership.

At the union headquarters it was reported that ten of Youlden, Smith & Hopkins's men had refused to work to-day. Four of the ten are non-union men who have applied for admittance to the union.

It is expected by the Employers' Association that they will be able to turn over a force of experienced teamsters to the master teamsters to-day. Advertisements have been placed in country papers. There have been some applications for work.

The strikers are obeying the orders to keep away from the stables, and the only men about to-day were those selected on the part of the executive committee to keep watch and see how affairs were being run by the employers. The police say they have had no trouble reported anywhere.

It is said to-day that neither side will now refer the wage and working-hour controversy to the State Board of Arbitration. Labor leaders assert that they were dictated to in the questions in a peaceful manner without resorting to radical methods, but the peremptory order issued by the Employers' Association to all of its members involved by the strike, that the State Board of Arbitration must not be resorted to, practically disposes now of any hope of settlement by that agency.

Freight is Piling Up.

Freight is beginning to pile up to-day at numerous railroad sheds and coastwise steamship wharves as a result of the illness of the teaming companies involved in the strike. Both sides declare that to-day will cause the real test of the struggle, and both sides are just as confident as they were last night that victory would be gained before the strike is over.

Several non-union men quit work upon being told more clearly just what the Teamsters' Union was fighting for.

Pickets are on duty every hour in the day and many non-union men have been told about the union wage and working-hour conditions, and have decided not to interfere as strike breakers and injure the cause of their fellow-workmen.

ARCHBISHOP PRESIDED.

CHICAGO, April 4.—Prominent prelates attended the meeting of the Catholic Church Extension Society here yesterday. Archbishop Messmer presided. Methods of distribution of aid were discussed.

CURRENT TOPICS CLUB AT TEA

The "president's day" of the Current Topics Club of Dorchester is observed to-day with a reception and tea at the Vendome. Daffodils and Jonquils bedeck the reception room and tea table.

In the receiving line are Miss Helen A. Whittier, president of the Massachusetts Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Sarah S. Bartlett, club president; Miss Gertrude F. Perkins, vice president; Mrs. Emma R. Wellington, recording secretary; Mrs. Elizabeth H. Eaton, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Minnie B. Stone, treasurer; Mrs. Mary A. Howe, founder of the club, and first president; Mrs. Etta E. Morris, past president.

$2,500 FOR FALSE ARREST

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 4.—Judge Dubois of the Supreme Court handed down an opinion re-establishing the verdict for $2,500 given by a jury to Lawrence T. Smith against Chief of Police Edward G. Macomber of Warren for assault and battery and false imprisonment.

The suit was tried before Presiding Justice Sweetland and a jury, and after the verdict the court declined to set it aside on the merits of the case, but said that a new trial would be granted on the ground that the damages were excessive unless the plaintiff would remit $2,500 on the sum of $2,500 awarded.

FIND MAN DEAD IN BED.

James Elliott, aged 40 years, was found dead in bed to-day at his home, No. 21 Harvard square. He had been suffering of late from heart disease.

CLOTHING

Why? Did the people of Boston and vicinity crowd our store every day last week to a point that tried our salespeople to the limit, and would have resulted in a state of demoralization in a less perfectly organized force?

What? Crowded our men's department with a throng so vast, so persistent, so eager, that at times it seemed as though even the very counters would be carried away in the wild rush for our specially advertised numbers?

Why? Was it that our sales of boys' and children's clothing assumed proportions far beyond even our most sanguine expectations, and probably double that of any concern in New England for a like period!

What Was It Did All This?

CONFIDENCE!

For weeks we've been advertising these special bargains in men's and boys' clothing; for weeks people have gradually been buying these great values, each one telling his or her own circle of friends of the advantages of trading at Harrison's; the confidence of the few brought the patronage of the many, and builded for us a business that was probably never equalled by any clothing store in Boston, and forged us into the front ranks of America's great bargain givers; bargains that we challenge the entire clothing trade of America to duplicate at a price even one-third to one-half more than our special offers of

Mrs. Eddy, Says New Secretary, Is

MOST WONDERFUL WOMAN IN WHOLE WORLD TODAY

Declares She Attends to as Much Work as Head of a Corporation, and Keeps Three Secretaries Busy.

By Viola Rodgers.

Special to the Boston American.

CONCORD, April 4.—For the first time since its installment in Pleasant View as secretary, to succeed Lewis Strang, H. Cornell Wilson, former head of the New York office of the Christian Science publications, consented to be interviewed recently. To a representative of the AMERICAN he told many of the phases of the home life and habits in the household of Mrs. Eddy which prove conclusively that the founder of the Church of Christ, Scientist, is vigorously and actively engaged in her work, and that no one transpires regarding the church or its business nature in which she is not cognizant of every move.

Mr. Wilson stated that nearly everything that was accomplished in Pleasant View was first suggested by Mrs. Eddy herself. Another remarkable fact learned through Mr. Wilson is that the book "Science and Health" has recently been revised by Mrs. Eddy, and that hardly a page has not been changed—not regarding its ideas and thoughts, but in the mode of expression.

Mr. Wilson said that he first met Mrs. Eddy last October, when he arranged for a memorable visit of the newspaper representatives, but as he was at that time not connected with the household of the Christ Science founder he could only see her casually, as other visitors are obliged to do.

"Her Powers Remarkable."

"So it is quite another matter," said Mr. Wilson, "and the difference between Mrs. Eddy as head of a church and as Mrs. Eddy, the head of the household, is extraordinary.

"Since the week that I have been a part of Pleasant View I have observed Mrs. Eddy at close range, and to me she is the most extraordinary woman in the world to-day. Her powers of endurance, her industry and her great executive ability is almost impossible to believe except by one who has the privilege of being part of the household.

"Personally she is the most entertaining and agreeable of women. I count this one of the most interesting of my days and some of the talks I have had with Mrs. Eddy have been very enjoyable.

"In allusions so often made to Mrs. Eddy as a mysterious life are the most absurd ones ever invented. There is no mystery about her life than there is about me. To be sure she cannot allow the entire world to come in and take possession of her home at any hour of the day or night, nor does she even consult about her affairs with every one in her own household.

Cannot Spare Time.

"Many times she would see persons gladly, she told me, but she feels that she must conscientiously take the time from her work for the purely social pleasures which visits might give her. As for Mrs. Eddy being unable to write or walk, as some persons have been prone to believe, I have seen her write many letters, this very day, some of them two and three pages long, and only this morning I myself typewrote from her written copy the message which will be read this evening from the mother church in Boston.

"She has been up and down stairs consulting in the library and attending to other matters, and these things have been accomplished with a degree of earnestness of half her years. Her intellect is as unclouded as that of a person in the very flower of life."

Mr. Wilson laughed at the idea of those about Mrs. Eddy dominating her.

"A person could not be here over night without seeing the utter ridiculousness of that story," he said. Mrs. Eddy herself has charge of everything in Pleasant View. She could not be persuaded, even by her attorneys, to take one step that she did not herself believe was right. The true facts would have intervened by act as best friends' were men of Mrs. Eddy's own selection and choice. It was her idea alone to make a trust fund for her son long before his legal action was known to her."

Keeps Secretaries Busy.

Of her daily routine Mr. Wilson says that the first thing he hears in the morning is the bell in Mrs. Eddy's room, which awakens her.

"She is up as early as 6 o'clock, breakfasts at 7, and after breakfast until luncheon time she remains in her study, and writes and keeps her secretaries busy every moment. There are three of us there at present, and the work she supervises in it is as great as that of any busy office man in New York.

"Her afternoons are equally busy, and since the beginning of this action regarding her son she has held daily conferences with her attorney and trustee. She is in a most cheerful, undisturbed frame of mind, and her spirit seems to pervade the entire household.

Last night the regular weekly meeting of the Concord Church of Christ, Scientist, was held, Professor Hering, the reader, officiating. Professor Hering asked those present who had been benefited by Christian Science to arise, and there was scarcely a person in the great audience who did not respond.

FIELD AND FOREST CLUB SING "SYLVIA"

The Field and Forest Club held its annual reception and entertainment last night at Wilson Hall, Dorchester. The operetta, "Sylvia," was very successfully presented by the younger members of the club and their friends, under the direction of Mrs. Y. S. Williams and was followed by dancing. Refreshments were served by girls in Japanese costume in a tea garden decorated with bench blossoms.

THAT PLEDGE FOR DEPEW SEEN IN LIGHT OF "SQUARE DEAL."

AS Mr. Cortelyou has said to me more than once during this campaign, if elected, I shall go into the Presidency unhampered by any pledge, promise or understanding of any kind, sort or description, save my promise, made openly to the American people, that so far as in my power lies I shall see to it that every man has a square deal, no less and no more.—From the statement Theodore Roosevelt made November 4, 1904.

About a week before the election in the Autumn of 1904, when it looked certain that the State ticket would go Democratic, and was doubtful as to Roosevelt himself, he, the President, sent me a request to go to Washington to confer upon the political conditions in New York State. I complied, and he told me he understood the campaign could not be successfully carried on without sufficient money, and asked if I would help him in raising the necessary funds, as the National Committee, under control of Chairman Cortelyou, had utterly failed of obtaining them, and there was a large amount due from them to the New York State Committee.

I explained to him that I understood the difficulty here was mainly caused by the up-State leaders being unwilling to support Depew for re-election as United States Senator; that if he, Depew, could be taken care of in some other way, I thought matters could be adjusted and the different contending elements in the party brought into close alliance again. We talked over what could be done for Depew, and finally he agreed that, if found necessary, he would appoint him as Ambassador to Paris.—From E. H. Harriman's letter to Sidney Webster.

DOUGLAS NOT LOOKING FOR NOMINATION

Might Take It if Offered, but Will Not Make a Contest for It.

ON WAY HOME FROM SOUTH

Special to the Boston American.

NEW YORK, April 4.—Ex-Governor William L. Douglas of Massachusetts arrived in this city last night on his way home from his Winter vacation in Florida. With Mrs. Douglas and niece, he registered at the Hotel Manhattan and will leave early for Brockton.

The ex-Governor looked the picture of health and said he never felt better in his life. When seen by a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter he was reading clippings from newspapers that referred to present conditions in Massachusetts. Asked what he had to say about the probability of being a candidate for Governor, he declined the following statement:

"I am not seeking the nomination for Governor. I have no personal ambition to be Governor again. It seems to me the Democratic candidate for Governor the people should first have something to say. It is too early to make a positive declaration. Why, it is five or six months before the contest. If the people want me to serve them again as Governor of course I shall give the matter serious consideration, out of respect to them and out of respect to the Democratic party.

Not Looking for Office.

A prolonged interview failed to elicit a more definite statement.

"I want to make clear," said ex-Governor Douglas, "I don't want it said that under no circumstances would I be a candidate; but I do want it understood that I am not a candidate in the sense that I would make a contest for the nomination. In a nutshell, I am not looking for the nomination."

Mr. Douglas remarked that he should not be expected at this time to make a more positive statement.

"That is the way I feel about it," he said. "I am not seeking it, but, of course, it is an honor that I would have to consider, and would consider seriously.

"Now, you think it is about all I should be expected to say."

Would Say Nothing More.

Told that it was certainly a middle-of-the-road attitude, he replied that until he had a fuller knowledge of conditions and knew more about the situation he could say nothing more positive. He said that he regarded the withdrawal of John D. Moran had precipitated speculation as to Democratic candidates, and that, inasmuch as his willingness and eligibility had been prominently discussed, he would be expected to say something, but he could only say at this time:

"I won't say I would not take the nomination if it seemed that my nomination was demanded by the people, but I will say I am not seeking it."

HARRIMAN'S $60,000 FOR NATIONAL FIGHT

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, April 4.—Of the $200,000 raised by Edward H. Harriman at the suggestion of President Roosevelt to carry New York State for Roosevelt and Higgins in the campaign of 1904, $200,000 went to the Republican State Committee, of which ex-Governor B. B. Odell was chairman, and the remaining $60,000 was retained by the Republican National Committee to be used under the direction of Chairman Cortelyou.

This fact is known to Mr. Cortelyou, to Mr. Hines, to Mr. Odell and others.

Chairman Cortelyou, in Washington last night, had an opportunity given by the AMERICAN to confirm or deny that this was the disposition made of the Harriman fund, a question being sent to him in writing.

The following was Mr. Cortelyou's reply:

"The Secretary, following his invariable rule, has nothing to say."

Excitement in the White House over the Harriman revelations had not abated to any appreciable extent yesterday, according to Washington advices. President Roosevelt sent for all friendly newspaper correspondents, to make further explanations of his side of the controversy. The President declined to allow in the conference any newspaper man who represents other than administration organs.

To the favored ones the President talked for more than an hour, and his talk was emphatic and embellished. Not before in his administration has the President been so greatly worried as he has been over the revelations of the Harriman letter.

In his talk with favored newspaper correspondents Roosevelt denounced in unmeasured terms every person who had taken issue with him.

FAMILY IN TEARS, WAITS THAW SANITY DECISION

Vast Crowd Packs Courthouse While Lunacy Commissioners Confer with Judge.

NEW YORK, April 4.—Intense excitement prevailed about the criminal courts building even an hour before the time for the convening of the court. While there were rumors to the effect that the report of the lunacy commission, which was to be made to Judge Fitzgerald, would be that Thaw is insane, the fact that the commissioners had been up until 2 o'clock this morning over their finding led to no belief in some directions that there had been a division of opinion on it.

The anticipation of the commissioners report, which was regarded as a verdict one way or the other, by the court, filled all the corridors of the court house and blocked the approaches to it.

All of the four lawyers except Delmas were in the court room early. As the moments dragged along with no word from the commissioners they showed their nervousness.

Thaw in an ante room was visibly worried, and kept appealing to his prison keeper to know the reason for the long delay. The jurors, too, who were kept out of the trial room until the hearing opened, grew impatient, but there was no help for them.

Wife, Mother and Sister in Tears.

Evelyn Nesbit Thaw entered court at 10:30. When the relatives of Harry K. Thaw reached the Criminal Courts building they were ushered into an anteroom. They were obliged to come out into the main corridor to do so because the commission was conferring with Justice Fitzgerald in the room between the court room and the anteroom where they had been waiting.

When Mrs. William Thaw, Evelyn Thaw and Lady Yarmouth came out into the corridor it was evident to all that they had been weeping. One of Thaw's lawyers said:

"In the event of an adverse decision we will immediately apply for a writ of habeas corpus before a Supreme Court justice and appeal from the decision of the lunacy commission.

Appeal Adverse Decision.

We have looked up the law, and in spite of all reports to the contrary we find we would have a right to appeal from the decision of the commission."

Mrs. Evelyn Thaw looked particularly pleased when a reporter called her attention to the fact that to-day was the second anniversary of her marriage to Thaw. She smiled and said:

"Yes, it is; I didn't think you would remember that point."

Considerable speculation occurred as the hour of opening the session passed. Dan O'Reilly said that the commission was conferring with Justice Fitzgerald and going over the report they had prepared as a result of their findings.

Rumor of Divided Report.

One of the reports that gained currency was that the commissioners were divided as to their report. The delay in making the findings known was largely responsible for this rumor.

When one of Thaw's lawyers showed the defendant a story in a newspaper to the effect that he had collapsed during his examination by the Lunacy Board, Thaw said:

"Nonsense, rot."

Clifford W. Hartridge said:

"The report that Harry Thaw broke down while being examined is all rot. It's nothing more nor less than a dream. Take my word for that. We are very sanguine, more so than ever, in fact, that Mr. Thaw will be declared sane."

The lawyer's manner was most emphatic.

WELLS WINS ON APPROPRIATION

The appropriation committee of the City Council to-morrow will complete the making up of the annual appropriation bill of the city, and will submit the same to the Board of Aldermen at next Monday's meeting.

The committee has ignored the Mayor's recommendation of an allowance of $1,147,000 for the fire department, and will allow Commissioner Wells the amount which he asked for, $1,185,000. It has voted to allow the Mayor $100,000 for office expenses, of which $50,000 is for the publicity bureau. He also gets $40,000 for public celebrations.

PROVIDENCE, April 4.—Chancellor William Goddard of Brown University is seriously ill at Aiken, S. C. Colonel Robert I. Goddard has been called to the chancellor's bedside.

EXPLOSION; 24 FIREMEN HURT

NEW YORK, April 4.—Twenty-four firemen were hurt, four of them seriously, in fighting a fire in Maiden Lane early today. An explosion blew out the walls on the top floor of the building. Four of the men were brought under a mass of debris. They were rescued by comrades just in time and hurried away to hospitals.

GAME FISH OF GREAT LAKES AT BIG SHOW

Eighteen Beauties for Aquarium That Draws Crowds at Sportsmen's Exhibition.

NEW ATTRACTIONS DAILY

With the arrival to-day of eighteen handsome varieties of game fishes from the Great Lakes, the big fish tanks that have been in readiness for the finny tribe since the first week, at the Sportsmen's Show in Mechanics' Building, are now among the most interesting exhibits at the temporary aquarium that is proving so popular an attraction.

Racy-looking specimens of trout, lake salmon and perch are on exhibition. Many of the fish have never before been shown at any similar show. Indeed, these are tanks of piscatorial beauties on exhibition this year that cost a small fortune to be brought to Boston for lovers of outdoor sport to inspect in their native element.

Thompson Seton to Talk.

To-day Professor Prince gave an interesting talk upon fishing by modern methods. To-night Ernest Thompson Seton, the well-known author, lecturer and delineator of the life of wild animals, will deliver an interesting address upon outdoor life, habits of animals he has known, etc.

Exhibits for the Sportsmen's Show in the way of specimens, game trophies, rifles, rods, coon skins and foxes are arriving daily to fill up the spaces that have been waiting for them. Owing to unforeseen difficulties in the matter of transportation the show was minus some of its best "curios" early in the week, but nearly all of the delayed specimens have been accounted for.

Keep Maine Guides Busy.

The guides at the big show from Maine and New Brunswick are kept busy nearly all the time answering questions put to them by enthusiastic men and women who seek information concerning the mysteries of rods, boats, reels and lines that "are the best to use."

All in all, the Sportsmen's Show is a great place for the lover of the wild—the devotee of the open air, the pike woods and the salt streams. Fishermen have written stirring tales that ring true of hunting adventures that stimulate the blood and are heard where the sportsmen gather. It's a show that is popular because it deserves to be popular.

END TESTIMONY IN $24,000 SUIT AGAINST POLICE

Mrs. McGuirk Produces Witnesses Who Deny Patrolmen's Stories.

GOES TO THE JURY TO-DAY

All the evidence in the suit brought against four Newton police officers by Mrs. Florence B. McGuirk, alleging false arrest, was concluded before Judge Dodge in the United States Court to-day and the case goes to the jury late this afternoon. Mrs. McGuirk sues each of the officers for $6,000. They are Edward F. O'Sullivan, Edward Desmond and John McNeil, patrolmen, and Sergeant Howard F. Burke.

To contradict the testimony of the officers as to incidents they declared they witnessed in Mrs. McGuirk's room on Newton street, Norton, her counsel produced four witnesses who said that they had been in the room during the time mentioned and had seen nothing out of the way.

Miss Eva Sutherland said that one thing the officers might have seen by the window on the curtain was her sitting in her own brother's lap. Her brother also testified that he was there and saw nothing wrong. James A. Fletcher said he had sung "The Palms" and "The Holy City" in Mrs. McGuirk's room.

Charles E. Prescott, who occupies the whole of the first floor of the apartments of Mrs. McGuirk, said that his attention had never been attracted by any unusual noises above him.

Mrs. McGuirk was asked by her counsel if she had furnished to the court all the witnesses who had been in her during the latter part of January, during which time the officers said they were watching the house. She said she had produced all that she could reach.

800 GUESTS AT MAILERS' BALL

The Newspaper Mailers' Union of Boston held their eighth annual ball in Roughan Hall, Charlestown, last night, and terminated a number of prominent guests and secured compliments on all sides. About eight hundred attended, including Mayor Fitzgerald, Circuitman managers of the dailies were in attendance as special guests.

The grand march was led by Floor Director James A. Blake, with Mrs. Henry S. Fitzgerald, wife of the ex-Senator. Then in order came Thomas M. Kelley, with Miss Agnes Kelley; Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Harbert, President Fred W. Allen and Miss Margaret Blake; Bernard Fowler, with Miss E. O'Connell; Michael J. Bresnan, with Miss Helen Gilmore.

The officers of the ball were: Sergeant-at-arms, marshal, Fred W. Worsley; assistant floor marshal, Bernard Fowler; floor director, James A. Blake; assistant floor director, Thomas M. Kelley; chief of aids, Michael J. Bresnan, with the following aides: Thomas F. Houlihan, T. Harrington, J. Healy, Thomas F. Riley, M. J. Crouin, J. Stone, E. J. Smith, J. P. Meaney, J. F. Brickley, J. E. Kelley, R. F. Allen, Edw. Wallace, J. J. Martin, M. Bloom, William Murphy, M. J. Fife, D. Levine, C. Fiddler, E. J. Hughes, H. Noonan, H. Chamberlain, William H. O'Neil, J. Harriett, W. Finn, P. Kane and R. Schoenberg.

RAISE REWARD FOR MARVIN BOY

WILMINGTON, Del., April 4.—Governor Lea will go to Dover to-day and will take up the hunt for the kidnapped Marvin boy.

The State's appropriation, the father's deposit of $1,000 in gold and the offer of the Horner newspapers have not brought back little Horace Marvin or solved the mystery of his disappearance. It is thought that a reward of $5,000 or more will be offered by the State which can be taken from various contingent funds, and would serve to show the State's interest and determination to keep vigil night and day every hour after the detectives have been withdrawn.

Farrar and Gadski; Each Wins Triumph

By Charles Fleischer.

THE first matinee of the opera season saw another vast throng at the Boston Theatre. Like the night before, Puccini, probably the greatest living writer of opera, was again the composer honored.

This time it was "Madame Butterfly," based upon the story of John Luther Long, and the play, both of the same name, by David Belasco.

So it was a union of Japan, America and Italy, the two former furnishing the theme and the latter the music. The recurrence of the oncoming strains of "The Star Spangled Banner" as a motif gave a unique attention to the American work, it not yet accustomed to serving as a theme in serious grand opera.

The story is a simple one, and tragic as simple. Lieutenant Pinkerton of the United States navy marries a Geisha girl while in Nagasaki, then returns to America and marries one of his own people. This is quite after the fashion of the "superior" white race. What does it matter to trifle with the deepest feelings of a woman of darker skin?

Miss Farrar Reveals More Of Her Temperamental Power.

It does matter to Cio-Cio-San, for when she learns that Lieutenant Pinkerton has married a woman of his own people, she blindfolds her baby, places a Japanese doll in one of his hands and a fan in the other, sing in his other, and then plunges a dagger into her own neck.

Geraldine Farrar was the sweet, trusting little Japanese, "only fifteen years old," whose pathetic performance gives her the same Madame Butterfly.

Miss Farrar leaps out the promise of the opening night in "Faust." Her Cio-Cio-San gave further evidence of her temperamental histrionic power. Again, without obscuring herself in the finished artist, she showed striking dramatic intelligence, her acting was sincere, the part well composed, and altogether her playing of Miss Butterfly was both satisfactory, in one so young, and a prophecy of much greater achievement, if Miss Farrar remains modest and works hard.

Vocally, Miss Farrar's Butterfly seemed to me stronger than her Marguerite. Her voice showed to greater advantage, and the fine fresh brilliance of youth added now and then the fullness of maturity.

The chief comic relief of the reddish "hero," Pinkerton, fell to Mr. Dippel. Once more he proved a great foil to Miss Farrar, being totally inadequate vocally and histrionically. He proves Von Bülow's statement (was it?) that a tenor is not a voice but a disease.

A delightful contrast, both in voice and in acting, was exhibited in the refined performance of Mr. Scotti, who sang the part of Sharpless, the American consul. His unctuous, resonant baritone was a perfect medium for the aristocratic spirit of the mutual friend of the Japanese maiden and the American cad.

An appreciative word is due Mr. Reiss, whose Goro was very conceived and sung, and to Mme. Jacoby, who, at short notice, took Mme. Homer's place in the part of Suzuki, the nurse and maid-of-all-work. Facility inured to the Japanese work. Facility failed utterly to envelop herself in a Japanese atmosphere, and her aloof and swayed, masterfully and every moment, both the players and the singers.

The audience was whimsically applausive as usual, regardless of interest in the music and often interfering with the orchestral completion of a scene.

Once more Miss Farrar came in for the honors of the lingering "stars" of applause. In answering the many curtain calls at the end of the opera, she made a curious error, showing her immaturity. She figured that committed suicide, and, like a true, aesthetic Japanese, she had done properly, stabbed behind a screen and then covered the gash with a veil.

When she came before the curtain in her proper person, as a true American girl, bowing to her Boston friends, she crassly exhibited her blood-bedecked neck. A polished artist would never have done that.

And yet I believe that Geraldine Farrar will become very great—if she remains modest and works hard.

Real Music Lovers Crowded Theatre Lobby for Rush.

The matinee was not yet over when scores of women and men were already occupying points of vantage in the lobby of the Boston Theatre, in order to be ready for the evening "rush" on admission tickets.

These are the real lovers of music, whose presence at the opera means a sacrifice, literally "a sacred offering," brought to the altar of Apollo.

The evening's opera gave the first opportunity of the season to the devotees of Wagnerian opera to pay homage to their favorite, the particular feast being "Tristan und Isolde," book and music by Richard Wagner.

Mr. Cornied gave us the strongest cast thus far, the only one—if truth be told—that was really adequate, and at the same time worthy of the traditions of the Metropolitan Opera Company and competent properly to interpret the great music-drama.

Mme. Gadski was, I believe, the only novelty on the programme. Though well known and deservedly popular in Boston, this was, I think, her first appearance in the part of Isolde.

Mme. Gadski Particular Star of Evening Opera.

She was the bright particular star of the evening, even in a cast of real excellence. Her Teutonic beauty of generous proportions is matched by a voice which has not lost its youthful ring and has added the richness of maturity.

Mme. Gadski has gained greatly in dramatic power, though she still worries and worries one at times by her poverty of facial expression and the awkwardness of the automatic operatic type. However, Mme. Gadski's achievement showed impressive climaxes in both the second and third acts.

Mr. Burgstaller's singing of the exacting role of Tristan is quite fine. A faithful and intelligent performance, though more satisfactory vocally than histrionically. The great singing actors or acting singers are rare in our days, and the shades of the De Reszkes will not down.

Mme. Schumann-Heink, an old Boston favorite, repeated her completely satisfying rendition of Brangoene. Her voice is powerful as ever and an obedient servant to her refined dramatic intelligence.

"Tristan und Isolde" Cast Best Yet Offered.

Mr. Van Rooy is another favorite. His noble voice was as true as his loyalty to Tristan. The last act gives him his opportunity, of which he took full advantage, uniting with Mr. Burgstaller to give a duet-act as impressive a scene between two men as grand opera affords.

Messrs. Blass, Muhlmann and Reiss should also be mentioned for the excellent singing of their several parts, and Mr. Herz for the authoritative conducting and interpretation of a complicated score.

We seem to be "catching up" with the music of Wagner, if I may judge somewhat by myself. Ten years ago we still regarded it as music of the future," and there were many musicians and critics who refused to yield to what they regarded a musical creed.

Now there is none so orthodox musically as to fail to do Wagner reverence. If Wagner does not take his place among the immortals, he will at least have played his part in the development of methods of musical expression.

Wagner Is Genius of Infinite Variety.

The "loudness" of Wagner, the shrieks of his singers and the bombardments of the orchestra, are still discussing, and they remind one of what Mr. Dooley said in regard to similar noises:

"As we come out into the nimost tumultuous stillness under the Elevated road Hogtin says: 'He's a great composer, is Richard Sibelius.' 'Who did his liver complose?' says I."

But Wagner is a genius of infinite variety, and is equally uncanny in the exquisite sweetness and melodic beauty of his composition.

Among the finest examples of his power in this direction is the music of the "Liebes Tod," with which "Tristan und Isolde" closes, the two lovers drank with sweetest swan songs upon their lips.

No need of pills, Cathartics, Castor Oil, nor "Physic." If you'll only work the Sawbuck regularly.

Exercise is Nature's Cure for Constipation and,—a Ten-Mile walk will do. If you haven't got a wood-pile.

But, if you will take your Exercise in an Easy Chair, there's only one way to do that, because,—there's only one kind of Artificial Exercise for the Bowels and its name is "CASCARETS."

Cascarets are the only means to exercise the Bowel Muscles without work.

They don't Purge, Gripe, nor "upset your Stomach," because they don't act like "Physics."

They don't flush out your Bowels and Intestines with a costly waste of Digestive Juice, as Salts, Castor Oil, Calomel, Jalap, or Aperient Waters always do.

No—Cascarets strengthen and stimulate the Bowel Muscles, that line the Food passages and that tighten up when food touches them, thus driving the food to its finish.

A Cascaret acts on your Bowel Muscles as if you had just sawed a cord of wood, or walked ten miles.

Cascarets move the Food Naturally, digesting it without waste of tomorrow's Gastric Juice.

The thin, flat, Ten-Cent Box is made to fit your Vest pocket, or "My Lady's" Purse. Druggists—10 Cents a Box.

Carry it constantly with you and take a Cascaret whenever you suspect you need one.

Be very careful to get the genuine made only by the Sterling Remedy Company, and never sold in bulk. Every tablet stamped "CCC." 731

Sewing Machine Club

On payment of $2.00 admission fee into our club we will deliver a "Monarch" sewing machine to your home. Thereafter you pay $1.00 a week until you have paid $23.75 for a machine you would not part with for $50.00. Another carload ready for immediate delivery.

BY forming these clubs and selling thousands of machines our four great stores have been able to purchase a machine known all over the world, in sufficient numbers to enable us to cut the price down to $23.75 on the club plan. This same machine purchased under its real name would cost you just about double our club price. We have named it the "Monarch," but this is not the real name. If we published the real name it would have a tendency to injure the agent's business, because everybody would buy the machine of us in order to get the same thing at half price.

Changing the Name Does Not Change the Quality

THE "Monarch" is acknowledged by the hundreds of our customers who have already purchased it and are using it day after day to be superior to any machine they have ever used. It is extremely rapid, easy to operate, and does perfect work from the most delicate to the heaviest fabric.

$23.75 is the Lowest Price a Machine of This Quality Has Ever Been Sold For.

WE really ought to charge $35 cash for this machine, or $40 on the club plan, but we have just secured another special shipment of 500 machines and while they last the price will be $23.75.

$2 at Joining the Club and $1 a Week Thereafter

The "Monarch" is warranted against mechanical defects for ten years.

"The Monarch" Description: Beautiful drophead machines; the oak case is Colonial style. The machine is of the improved lockstitch type, full ball-bearing at five vital points—hence easy to run and almost noiseless. It has positive feed, self-threading shuttle, automatic bobbin winder.

Attachments: Ruffler with shirring plate, tucker, six hemmers, one braider, one narrow foot hemmer, that sews on lace at same operation; one quilter and all necessary tools.

The Tailor Who Makes Good

Don't forget that a tailor, to make good to you for the money you pay him, must give you honest value in return, which means, first, good-wearing clothes; next, best trimmings, and lastly careful fitting and making, all of which is absolutely necessary to give you satisfaction. This cannot be had for less than $20, and if you stop one moment and think you will agree with us.

$20

We have the best suitings in Boston for anywhere near the price of $20 we are asking.

Don't Let The Watchman Sleep

The liver is the watchman of the body. So long as the liver keeps actively at work, there is little danger from bilious attacks or other disorders that follow a torpid liver. Don't let it lag—don't let it go to sleep.

At the first signs of a lazy, drowsy liver, take the best remedy ever discovered for keeping the liver active. There is no other medicine like them for muddy complexion, dull eyes, constipation, stomach troubles, sick headache, dizziness and general debility. Beecham's Pills purify the blood, all poisonous matter from the system, act quickly on the bile and are a grand old remedy to

TO SIGNAL BIRTH OF SPAIN'S HEIR

MADRID, April 4.—King Alfonso has issued a decree naming the numerous official and diplomatic personages who will be privileged to attend the presentation ceremony which follows the birth of a royal child.

The decree also contains the following: "For the advantages of the inhabitants of the most heroic city of Madrid there will be displayed on that part of the palace called the Diamond's Point a Spanish flag if the child to be the heir, and a white flag if it be a girl."

If the child is born at night colored and white lights respectively will be shown.

BABY BORN IN NORTH STATION

Coming into the world in the women's waiting room at the North station at 7.50 o'clock last night, a ruddy-faced boy and his mother, Mrs. Bessie McNutt, of No. 77 O street, South Boston, are both doing well at the Relief Station.

The matron at the station, Policeman Cameron of the Hanover street station and the ambulance surgeon figured in the event. The orderly on duty at the Relief Station wanted to name the boy for the railroad.

MUSIC PUPILS SECRETLY WED

From a report published in an Ohio paper, the pupils of the Conservatory of Music got their first intimation of the culmination of a happy romance fostered in the halls of that institution, the news of the secret marriage of Miss Bright Hilliard of Newark, O., to Archie M. Gardner of ... o. 112 Huntington avenue, leaking out in that manner.

On March 2 the young woman informed her friends in Dana Hall that she was going away on a short trip. The couple went unaccompanied to the home of Rev. C. P. Pledger in Jamaica Plain and the marriage ceremony was performed.

FALL RIVER, April 4.—The Fall River Weavers' Union, at a meeting last night, voted to demand that the standard length of a print cloth cut shall be forty-six yards, and the price per cut twenty-one and seven eighths cents.

TOWNS FIGHT FOR AGE HONOR

Which came first, the hen or the egg? was an easy one, they say on Beacon Hill, in comparison with the puzzle before the Committee on Legal Affairs, which is worrying about this one:

"Was the first settlement in the Massachusetts Bay Colony made in the town of Weymouth or in what is now the city of Gloucester?"

Weymouth wants the question answered, because ten years ago Gloucester was permitted to acquire land at Stage Fort for a "memorial park to the first settlement in the Massachusetts Bay Colony," which Weymouth declares an historical outrage.

The committee will try to decide next Wednesday.

Return of the Streamer Hat, Which Was the Prevailing Style of a Decade or More Ago, Is Another Proof of

How Woman's Fashions Move in a Circle

Old Style, Long Ago Discarded, Is Back with a Rush, Coming by Way of Paris

FEMININE fashions apparently most exactly like these ten—no fifteen—years ago."

travel on a giant Ferris wheel and return every little while refurnished and renamed perhaps, but none the less old friends.

The latest revived "novelty" is the picture hat with its long ribbon streamers. This is shown by exclusive millinery as the very latest headgear fancy.

It is charmingly picturesque and artistic and very fetching when worn by the right type of woman.

The streamer hat does not belong to the independent, aggressive woman, with the stern features and decisive chin.

It seems to suggest the clinging, dependent girl, the dimpled chin, the coquettish smile. Matrons smile as they see the hats.

"Dear, dear!" they exclaim, "how styles do return! Why, I had hats almost

So they did, for the streamer hat is simply the revival of a mode unknown to the younger generation.

Fifteen years ago streamers raged. The hat without them looked queer.

Then the streamers became strings, being brought front under the chin and fastened in a bow under the left ear.

Later the strings became a narrow bridle and the bow disappeared, to be replaced by jeweled pins holding the bridle at each side.

The streamers of to-day came to America via Paris.

They seem to have been the natural evolution of the draped veils, which have been worn so extensively, fastened close at the nape of the feminine neck.

Anyway they are here, and on midsummer hats. Worn with thin frocks, they promise to be both popular and becoming.

CARE OF CANE FURNITURE

PERHAPS very few people know that bamboo furniture requires special treatment. As bamboo is liable to crack and come apart, it must be fed to counteract the effects of dryness of the room. It should be exposed to the air whenever possible. Do not place it too near the fire. Rub with equal parts of linseed oil and turpentine, applied with a flannel, and then rubbed in with a soft cloth. An occasional wash in cold water in which a handful of salt has been added, is good for bamboo. A good polish for oilcloth is to save all the waste from candles. Put all into a jar. When melted, add equal parts of turpentine and linseed oil. Stir well together. When cold it should be the thickness of cream. Wash the oilcloth, and when dry polish with soft rags, one for the cream, and two to finish polishing with. A beautiful polish will be obtained and the wear of oilcloth will be much longer.

TOMORROW'S BEST BARGAINS IN BOSTON'S BIG STORES

AN embarrassment of riches greets one in the bargain realm just now, and additional values are pouring down with the frequency of April showers. Some of the best of to-morrow's values are suggested below:

JORDAN MARSH COMPANY will have a special bargain sale of Roman striped tapestry covers, offering their 39-cent qualities for 19 cents. A supply of these handsome covers for davenrooms, ground cushions and pine pillows for Sunday use is also possible even to those of very limited purse.

GILCHRIST COMPANY offers, for Friday only, a splendid lot of long skirt chemises, or nainsook corset covers, either style, actually worth $1, for 67 cents; also corset covers of very fine nainsook, low round cut, many French models, edged with lace, worth 69 cents each, for only 39c.

FILENE'S will offer a lot of sample two-piece dresses, $5 values for $3.75 and $10 values for $7.50, only one or two of a kind; also a small lot of corset covers, 25-cent values for 13 cents; broadcloth and cheviot coats, $12.50 values, for $5.

F. P. O'CONNORS will have a special sale of the lawn wallets, all over embroidered linens, three different styles, some Val. and insertion trimmed and with long sleeves, ranging in value from $5.50 to $4.50, all for $2.95 to-morrow. Early selection advisable, as some of the styles are exclusive.

HENRY SIEGEL CO., in their grocery department, offer 15-cent packages of "Zest," the spring breakfast food, for 5 cents per package. They are also offering delicious imported pulled figs from Smyrna for 2 cents a pound, worth 20 cents. These make an ideal breakfast dish, and right in line with spring foods.

STARR'S will put on special sale seven model sunburst skirts in imported shadow plaid materials in the delicate new radium or iridescent effects, for $7.98. These are their $16.50 values. Also skirts measure over six yards around bottom and full wide gathered flounce, specially well worn with white skirt waists. "Early" is the word for those who want one, as there are only seven.

SHEPARD-NORWELL CO. for quick disposal of one lot of men's German flannel bath robes, in nice patterns, in light and dark colors, offer the $3 values for $3.50. These are especially suitable to wear along on summer cruises and for seashore wear. You can get this special quality of garment at this special reduced price to-morrow only.

DODGE & DREAM CO. in the dress goods department, have a bargain to-morrow in fine printed batiste—3,000 yards of this season's pretty patterns, put over in lengths from one yard to ten yards. Off the piece the price is 29 cents a yard, but for this sale they will go at 10 cents per yard.

MacDONNELL'S Tremont Temple Store offers, special for Friday, about 120 pairs two-clasp washable white suede lisle gloves, sizes 5, 5½ and 6, at the ridiculous price of 19 cents a pair, positively worth 50 cents.

HOUGHTON & DUTTON CO. sell a splendid couch bed outfit, consisting of a steel frame couch that telescopes, fitted with the well-known Ostermoor springs, and a mattress that is so upholstered that on one side it looks like a reclining couch, the other when opened out makes a comfortable bed. This outfit, a very presentable couch for day use, and at night, in almost a twinkling, you convert it into a full size bed. The price for to-morrow is only $19.50 for the entire outfit.

BUTLER'S, among other special offerings, will have shell hairpins, 25 cents values, at 10 cents a dozen; children's chambray rompers, sizes 2 to 5, values 75 cents, for 39 cents to-morrow; also housedress rubber gloves, for Spring garden and house cleaning, 59 cent values, to-morrow with salt and pepper to suit the taste. Care must be taken that stew does not burn.

Where the Mother Needs Patience

IT is generally understood that women excel in business. And both men and women invariably display more patience than the male sex, but is this true? Business men know that to keep sweet and kindly in the midst of our feminine world is worth more than to make much money, or to keep a home long without change.

There will be more patience in the home when we understand that our temper affects others as much as the cause, though the provocation of more consequence than our tasks.

Many of us are those who are the tenderest and most ashamed that men can be so patient in nonsensicals, while we find it so hard to be patient for the fruits of righteousness.

Don't Try To Mix Romance With Your Business Affairs

By Beatrice Fairfax

BUSINESS and love don't mix very well. If you are going to talk love, it is better to leave business entirely out of the question, and if you are going to attend strictly to business there is no room for love.

Women find it rather hard to understand that a man cannot mingle love-making with business, and many a young wife frets herself ill over what she imagines the loss of her husband's love.

Love is the best of all things, but the man who would neglect his business for love-making would be a highly unsatisfactory husband in the long run. Fortunately, he does not exist very often save in fiction.

But there is no necessity of a man becoming so absorbed in business that he can think and talk of nothing else.

The Difference

A WOMAN never tires of being petted and made much of. A man is more inclined to take love for granted. He loves his wife and feels that she loves him, so what is the use of talking about it all the time, he argues.

The woman feels the difference between courtship and marriage. During the former nothing was good enough for her; her slightest whim was law; the stars twinkled and the sun shone for her according to one young man's opinion.

After marriage the same young man loves her, perhaps even better, but he shows it in a more prosaic manner, and she, being a woman, cannot quite realize that you don't run for a train after you have caught it.

There is no doubt that a man can become more absorbed by business than anything else in the world. Love not to him is always more or less of a pastime. He can outgrow his interest in a woman, but he never outgrows his interest in business.

To woman, love is the most important of all things, and business will always seem of secondary consideration.

Some girls find it very hard to realize that the business office is not a sort of school for love-making. Every man is a possible Romeo.

They should remember that their employer engages them to attend to his business, not to amuse his clerks.

Use Discretion

THE man who spends most of his time flirting with some pretty stenographer would not make a very reliable husband. He probably would go on flirting with pretty stenographers, and how would his wife like that?

Courting hours come after business hours, and the man who can't get his mind off business long enough to do his love-making properly is not worth calling a man. He is nothing but a dry old fogie.

But as for the young wife who mourns all day because her husband was lost in his newspaper at breakfast—well, she is simply looking for trouble.

It does not mean that he loves her any less, but that the "race is to the swiftest," and if he is going to keep up with progress and earn a good living for her he must know what is going on and work his hardest. It's too bad, but that's the way in this modern, rushing world of ours.

She is quite in the right when she expects him to devote his after-business hours to her. It is the only time she really sees him, and if she keeps his house neat and comfortable for him she earns her share of love and appreciation.

So, though love and business may not mix, they can be distributed in a very equal portions.

Famous Artist Tells How Baby's Beauty Is Marred by Poor Teeth

Baby Contest Judge Warns Mothers Not to Neglect Children's Mouth in the Early, Formative Years

"MOTHERS, watch your children's teeth!"

That was the theme of a little sermonette preached recently by one of the five artist judges of the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN'S $1,000 Prize Baby Contest, Miss Sally Cross.

Miss Cross's miniatures of children are famous, and some of the most beautiful children in America have been immortalized by her brush.

She deplores the carelessness with which children's teeth are so often regarded.

"The beauty of any child can be spoiled by dental neglect," she declares.

"It is a great pity that parents do not realize sufficiently the tremendous importance of watching a child's teeth.

"Most children are by nature attractive with features which are fairly regular.

Care Is Needed

"A little care and watchfulness can improve plastic features that are a little faulty and can keep the perfect ones unspoiled.

"It is the child's mouth that needs most watching, for it can preserve or ruin his future good looks so easily.

"I have known a beautiful child to be completely transformed by the neglect of her teeth at the time the second set was forming.

Needless Blemishes

"One child in particular whom I painted was so changed by two ugly buck-like teeth being allowed to disfigure his mouth that it was difficult to believe he was the same wonderfully handsome little fellow that posed for me only two years before.

"The child's mouth changes more than any other feature, and it needs constant attention.

"It is a duty parents cannot realize too fully.

"Watch the child's mouth.

"The food required to properly proud of baby's first tooth, and she should feel the same pride and interest in the arrival of each of the other permanent teeth, for upon their regularity depends the future attractiveness of the child."

CHAPTER LXXXI.
The Borrowed Notes

"THE numbers on that slip of paper," said Wendell, "should correspond with the numbers of the bills. Will you be good enough to compare them?"

This the director did at once, and with manifest interest, checking off the numbers with a pencil.

"There appear to be two notes missing," said he at last, "otherwise it is just as you say—everything is there. Now, if you please, I will take your statement, and, to my mind, absolutely conclusive."

It was indeed, a bewildering business. Every fresh thing Frank saw or touched only seemed to deepen the mystery, and the climax came when, passing over a page that he was scribbling, he caught a line he was filled with money, and contained he eldest sister's name. Then, addressed to Reginald's very own handwriting to himself.

Noting his look of astonishment, the director at once asked:

"Oh, ah, yes! That is how we came to know your address."

"I have open this, of course?" Frank said.

"By all means. It was plainly intended for you.

This is what Frank read, written upon the official notepaper of the hotel where Reginald had stayed in New York. The handwriting was Reginald's beyond any doubt.

Dear Frank di began: I am in an awful mess, and, indeed, I wish to confess just here that up to now I have made a fearful hash of everything and freely admit that no such fool walks the face of the earth as myself. Of course, you will shrug your shoulders at this and say, "Quite so," and with ample justification. But believe me or not, as you will, I honestly assure you that if I come skin whole out of this scrape I mean to turn over a new leaf, and live a more useful life in the future. I think a little Arctic exploration or something of that sort would be a change in the direction of a steady existence at all events.

How the poor, weak Reginald the letter was. Frank's eyes filled as he read.

The next words brought him to his feet with a gasp of astonishment.

You remember Miss Sinvinsky, that marvellously beautiful woman we saw at Saratoga?

Woman to Die For

Reginald had met Miss. Sinvinsky, after all. Would this terrible, unfounded, almost nameless suspicion born of the finding of the dead boy's body in her trunk ever be laid? He went on with the letter:

You remember I told you that night she was a woman to die for. Well, perhaps those words may be fulfilled, for I know that I would die for her willingly, gladly.

I do not wish you to think, Frank, that I have forgotten poor dead Rita. I loved her dearly, and she loved me, but not as I love this glorious woman. You remember the pictured face of Mme. Miss. Sinvinsky in Rita's locket? It was her likeness to Rita that first attracted me, but Rita had no such glorious beauty as Mme. Slavinsky, no such wonderful magnetism.

I lost my head about her the first time I saw her over dining in Central Park. I turned about and followed her, and saw her enter the corridor of her hotel. I made inquiries and found that she was registered as the Baroness Slavinsky. Did you know she was a Baroness, Frank, and that she was reputed to be a widow? I sent up my card to her.

Repulsed

You know, Frank, I did not meet her at Saratoga, and I sought in vain for a formal introduction to her. None of my fast acquaintances were in a position to grant me request. The lady led too exemplary a life for that, and then, in my madness, I swore to her frankly, declaring my passion.

My letter was returned with no word of comment. Then, with the view of forcing my attention upon her at any cost, I waylaid her at every turn, and at last she consented to receive me.

But such a quiet, dressing down as she gave me when I called ought to have sobered any man. She was very kind—treated me as a foolish boy. It might have been as sister talking to me, and finally she informed me that she was a married woman and that my persistent attentions were not only embarrassing, but in the end might seriously compromise her.

I promised to cease from further molestation, but in my mad infatuation I quickly broke my word. Within twenty-four hours I attempted to see her again, and from that time on haunted the corridors of the hotel by day and night. That I succeeded in compromising her to some extent I now have not a shadow of doubt, for on hour or so ago I learned that her husband, a terrible Russian brute, is in New York and searching high and low for me. I am going to Boston. Should anything serious happen I will drop a line from there. In any case, I thought it better to prepare you for my disappearance.

What a blind idiot I have been! But there, Frank, I am not going to wish to turn over a new leaf and become a model member of society, for should I ever see you again I want all the help and encouragement you can give me to that endeavor. Yours in all sincerity,

REGINALD.

The letter dropped from Frank's nerveless hands. Had Mueller killed Reginald? The affair looked like Mueller's fiendish work. If he had, then Mueller was probably now in possession of the diamond necklace and the two odd diamonds. This letter put an entirely new complexion on the whole affair, and Frank realized he was indeed in a hideous predicament. He looked up and encountered an inquiring glance from the eyes of the director.

"Eh! Then it is further confirmation?" said he.

He could say not a word.

"Very well, then," he added cheerfully. "In the face of such conclusive evidence, what follows will be a mere formality, painful to you, Mr. Bracebridge, without doubt, but still a necessary formality. This way, gentlemen. If you please."

He led them through four corridors and down at last to a sort of crypt. He beckoned to an attendant, who at once conducted them to a trestled bier upon which a rigid figure lay. He withdrew the covering and Frank saw—he knew not whom.

CHAPTER LXXXII.
Hesitation

IT might be explained. It had much the appearance of being Reginald, but it was a face so greatly changed and the hair had been cut closely away from a terrible scalp wound which seemed to have altered the configuration of the head, if it were indeed Reginald's. Frank looked up and met an inquiring look from the director.

"Well?" said he.

"Well?" echoed Detective Loftus.

Frank turned first to the latter.

"What do you think?" he asked.

"Don't know give it up. Barring the mutilation he looks just like the other chap."

Frank then turned to the director.

"I am somewhat puzzled," he said. "The body bears a very strong resemblance to that of my cousin; but still the disfigurement may have something to do with it, perhaps."

"Very true, my dear sir. Take it for granted that your general impression is quite correct."

He handed the letter without a word of comment to Detective Loftus, and while he read once more surveyed the dead face, and the longer he looked the more striking the likeness to Reggie seemed to grow upon him. Despite all appearances, this must indeed be he. Besides, such collateral and cumulative evidence was irresistible.

It was clear that he had made a ghastly mistake in Cleveland. Still, it was a perplexing circumstance that Frank was not alone in doing this. Harris, the money lender, and Barker had been equally positive. Never was a man impaled upon sharper horns of a cruel dilemma. The situation was not only an extraordinary one, but had suddenly become acute; for Frank knew that he must make an immediate decision in the direction or the other.

He glanced at the director and saw a puzzled look upon his face.

"You seem to hesitate," said he. "Are you in any doubt as to identity of this body?"

Then at last was the direct question, which for good or evil must be answered now.

Decision

Frank had been so stunned by the rapid series of events following the finding of Reginald's body in Vera Slavinsky's trunk that he had forgotten for the moment the existence of the Bracebridges' identification—the clenched hand of the Bracebridges.

He looked up from the dead man's sleeve, but started back in sickening horror.

The arm was a mutilated mass. There was no chance for identity by the mark which might have been upon it was forever obliterated.

The Boston American Pattern

A Set of Modish, Up-to-Date Sleeves

5763

No. 5,763.—A sleeve has always power to make or mar a gown, so due attention must always be paid to this part of the dress, as the changes in the season's styles always seem to concentrate on sleeves. This illustration shows a group of sleeves that may be used to advantage by the home dressmaker in altering last year's gowns. They are suitable for the smart blouse, the thin, dainty evening dress, and the popular bonnet waist or over-blouse. Most of the season's materials are adaptable. The 36-inch bust measure will require 1¼ yards of material, 27 inches wide, for the sleeves and ¾-yards for the sleeve caps.

Sizes corresponding to 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

NOT A GREAT DIFFERENCE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Should a young man be older than the girl he wishes to marry, or does it bring one year older than myself? I am twenty-five.

SUSSEX.

It is better that the man should be the older of the two, but in your case the difference is so slight that I do not think it will mar your happiness.

CONSULT YOUR HEART

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am engaged to a man between years old and live with my aunt.

A young man about twenty-two years of age has become very a great deal of attention to me for about six months. I know he is almost two years, and, by the way he talks and acts, I think he likes me, although I have nothing more than a friendly feeling toward him. Now, this young man is coming to father nearly and told me that I need have bad habits and come a home every evening, and my aunt almost insists that I should keep company with him. He has given me some costly presents (no jewelry), which I refused at first, but he begged me to take them, which at last I did.

Now, Miss Fairfax, there is another young man, of the same age, who never had any bad habits at all, and who I think loves me, and I have a very strong feeling for him, but he is not so refined as the other, and for that reason my aunt is constantly at me, saying she doesn't see how I could think anything of a young man who hasn't refinement, when I have such a good chance with the first one. I am only a working girl myself. CHELSEA.

YOU should be the one you love best regardless of what your aunt's opinions are. You may at times feel his lack of refinement keenly, but if he loves you and you love him you very much in that respect. But do not be tempted to marry a man you do not love.

DON'T ENCOURAGE HIM

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young girl of nineteen and considered good looking. There is a young man who works in the same building as I do, who seems to like me very much. He told a lady friend of his and one that he loved me dearly.

Now, Miss Fairfax, what I want to know is how I can tell him he is a friend. I told him I was engaged to be married, but it doesn't seem to make much difference.

There is a young girl working at the same place as I do, who loves him dearly, but he doesn't care a great deal for her. This girl knows that he likes me and won't even speak to me, while people also found it out. What are the best of friends.

Do you please tell me how I can keep both this young girl and young man as my friends and still not have the young man think I am leading him on, or the girl think I am taking him away from her? BRADEIS.

TELL the young man that you do not want his attentions and give him no encouragement whatever. If you are not careful your dance will bear of his interest in you and become jealous. If you mind your own affairs and keep away from him the girl will see that you do not care for him, and perhaps he will grow interested in her.

Emma Eames

The beautiful and most popular grand opera star, writes:

My DEAR LEVY: Boston:

I find your Lablache Face powder very refreshing and soothing to the skin.

EMMA EAMES STORY.

Henrietta Crosman

The gifted comedienne, writes:

I never use any other powder, and have for years, either for the street or theatre, but your Lablache.

HENRIETTA CROSMAN.

Lablache Face Powder

makes evening dress for opera, ball, reception or dinner a pleasure, because it keeps the skin clear and velvety. It is a most wonderful beautifier.

HARDWARE MEN TO MEET HERE

The hardware trade of Boston is looking forward with much interest to the five days convention of the National Retail Hardware Association, to be held in this city June 1 to 22. Upward of 2,000 of the most progressive retail hardware dealers, with their wives and friends, as well as a large delegation of the factory people, representatives of the jobbing trade and others will be in the Hub.

Elaborate arrangements for the reception of the visitors have been made.

SPLENDID APRIL TONIC.

This is known as "Blood-Cleaning Time," especially among the older folks, who always take something during this month to clean the blood of impurities and build it up.

The following is the recipe as given by a well-known authority, and anyone can prepare it at home:

Fluid Extract Dandelion one-half ounce, Compound Sarsaparilla one ounce, Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla three ounces.

Get these simple ingredients from any good pharmacy and mix by shaking well in a bottle. The dose is one teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime.

Everybody should take something to help the blood, which becomes impoverished and almost sure after the winter season, especially those who are subject to Rheumatism, Catarrh, Kidney and Bladder trouble.

It is said that one week's use of this mixture will clear the skin of sores, pimples or boils.

This is sound, healthy advice, which will be appreciated by many readers.

DYING, TELLS MINISTER HE WRECKED HOME

WORCESTER, April 4. A decided sensation was created in church and other circles in this city and part of the State when it was learned today that William P. Herbert, the son of a clergyman, believing that he was about to die, and called the Rev. A. W. Weeks, former pastor of the Dewey Street Baptist Church, to his side, and had taken an oath that he had been responsible for the breaking up of the minister's home.

No more remarkable scene at what is believed will prove the young man's death bed has probably ever been witnessed in New England. It involved confession that shocked this city, ever stirred to its depths by rumors and wrecked the married life of the Rev. Mr. Weeks.

The son of his brother in the church, the Rev. G. C. Herbert, formerly pastor of the Glendale Baptist Church, the Rev. Mr. Weeks took William P. Herbert to his home. When the trouble came the clergyman made accusations in court against the young man. Herbert swore that he was innocent. Now he swears on the brink of the grave that in court he perjured himself.

Young Herbert is married now and is at the home of his wife's parents, Lawrence, C. They are Mr. and Mrs. Washington I. Mott. Herbert's wife is also the Rev. Mr. Weeks on March 11 to come and see her husband. The minister and Deacon Smith journeyed to the home of the dying man. They were shocked at the young man's condition. He could hardly talk, articulated so badly. The clergyman at first he managed to tell the clergyman of the wrong that had been rankling in his heart.

"I wronged you," said the weakened man faintly. "I am ashamed of it. I regret what I perjured myself. This is my dying statement. I make the confession that I may make my peace with God and man."

The statement was drafted into a written paper. Herbert signed it and swore to it. Then the clergyman knelt in prayer with the man who had the death pallor on his face.

"Good bye, William," said the clergyman, taking the thin hand of the young man. "I forgive you."

The clergyman said that he felt thankful that Providence had interposed and that Providence had touched the heart of the young man. He would not know where his eldest that he did not know where his wife was. They have children about the custody of whom they have appeared in court.

REAL ESTATE MEN PLAN TO IMPROVE CITY

Members of the Boston Real Estate Exchange gathered at the Hotel Somerset last evening with a number of invited guests, heard good advice from New York, as well as some jokes, listened to speeches on what should be done to make Boston something more than it is, and praised real estate from start to finish.

Among the guests were Francis E. Ward, president of the New York Board of Real Estate Brokers, and Henry M. White, jr.

Mr. Ward, large and burly, brought forth humor from Mr. White's lean frame by telling the broken-nosed all the time he was talking.

Whitney on Reciprocity.

"The opportunity of obtaining the open door of trade to a vast region in the South and East, progressionately and nationally advantageous, for which we have been permitted to pass with hardly the cold consent of a passing glance," said Henry M. Whitney, Possible reciprocity treaties of great benefit to us and to others have been entered into almost indifferently.

In speaking of "the Gentle Art of Driving Business Away from Boston," Edwin D. Preston said that the city had undoubtedly suffered from an excess of so-called legislation. He spoke his mind freely with which certain obnoxious laws had been enacted and pleaded for a revision of Boston's archaic building laws.

Henry Hayden Wilkins said that he thought the idea of putting trains back into the Park square depot would be a mistake and a long step backward, and would give only temporary relief for about ten years. He believed in the idea of a new City Hall for the city, and would give a boom to the district and would increase valuation of property.

Believes in Greater Boston.

George Howland Cox believes in a Greater Boston. He told why he believed in it and what advantage it would be to Boston and surrounding towns.

"It is absolutely certain that any progress that will bring the people of New Jersey, Brookline, Quincy or Cambridge to a realizing sense that he is a part and parcel of a Greater Boston will be of great value."

DR. SHANAHAN OR FR. COYLE FOR BISHOP?

It is reported today in Catholic circles that at the meeting of bishops of the archdiocese of New England on Tuesday last at the archiepiscopal residence here, to consider the three names suggested for a successor to Bishop Beaven by the permanent rectors and consultors of the diocese of Fall River, two of the names were received with favor, but the third was not.

It is understood that the names recommended to the bishops were those of the Rev. Edmund F. Shanahan of Woburn, Mass., the Rev. James H. Coyle of Taunton, Mass., and the Rev. Patrick J. Healy of Mt. Kennedy, Jamaica Plain, Mass. Shanahan's name has been put before the bishops unsolicited by the friends of a Boston priest, it is asserted.

The name of Dr. Shanahan as a candidate for the bishopric of Fall River, it is said, is often influenced into the energy of Father Byrne as pastor of the parish which he entered on the night bishop.

It is said that the clergy of Fall River sought Dr. Shanahan's permission to have his name presented as a candidate, but he was unequal and significant step.

Dr. Shanahan was born in Jacksonville, Fla., 45 years ago. For many years he has been attached to the Catholic University at Washington.

SPOTTED FEVER AGAIN INVADES HARVARD RANKS

J. Locke of No. 23 Russell Hall, Harvard, a member of the class of 1909, was been sent to his home in Portland, Me., suffering from spotted fever.

The case closely follows on the fatal one of Edward Harmon, class of 1909, with rooms in Westmoreley Hall, who died last week from the same illness.

The appearance of a second case of the dread disease has created considerable uneasiness among the college authorities and the undergraduates.

Locke, the second student to be stricken, was taken ill on the night of the Sophomore Smoker. Then, as soon as his illness was diagnosed as spotted fever, he was sent home.

Harvard Medical, son of Professor Barrett Wendell, is ill with measles.

WAGE EARNERS CHOOSE OFFICERS

At the meeting of the Wage Earners' Central Club last night arrangements were completed looking to a Wage Earners' Ball Night at the Columbia Theatre. The new constitution was adopted and the following officers for the ensuing year were elected: President, John E. Portz; first vice president, Thomas Egan; second vice president, P. J. Kickham; corresponding and recording secretary, A. L. Doonan; financial secretary, John M. Power; treasurer, George Curren; sergeant-at-arms, C. A. Coy.

HARVARD PLANS TO WELCOME WOODRUFF

Great preparations are being made by the student body at Harvard for a rousing welcome to be tendered Harry Woodruff, a graduate, who appears at the Majestic The atre in "Brown of Harvard" next week. A committee of the students has the matter in charge, and no attempt is being made to make Monday, April 15, Harvard night at the Majestic. The theatre officials, however, have not fallen in with the plan, and, anticipating trouble for that night, have refused to sell tickets to the students in blocks. Two is the greatest number allowed to be seated together.

ROBSON IN EVEN BOUT WITH ABE

By Tad

PHILADELPHIA, April 4.—Greek met Greek last night when Abe Attell and Spike Robson rossed mitts for their international six round go. Abraham met a master of cleverness when he faced the speed marvel from England, and, although he tried every trick and punch he ever knew, he could do no more than black the left eye of the foreigner.

Giving the fight as the man up a tree would, the best that could be said was a draw. At times the shifty Abraham made the Britisher look like a wooden Indian, and then again Spike made Abe look like a sparring partner.

Neither of the feather-weight wonders has a slip that would shake a pint of milk. Robson often held his face open to the slams of Attell in order to get one in himself. Both landed what looked to be the most-producing wallops time and time again, but there was never the signal of distress once from either man.

Like the famous rhyme, it was off again, on again, gone again, Flanegan.

In the books it says that sound travels 743 miles an hour. Well, sound hasn't anything on either of the fellows when it comes to rapid transit. In the first and second rounds Attell jabbed and outbeaped the bouncing Robson, but as the battle grew the British gent jabbed, punched and beaked so fast that our beloved Abraham looked as though he had swallowed something that did not agree with him.

In the fourth Abe slammed some lefts on Spike's eye that raised a lump like a water blister and reddened his nose and cheek so that the crowd howled with delight.

In the fifth Spike crossed Abe with lightening like rights, shaking him up and rolling out loud whoops from the Philadelphia shouters. There was so much time taken up with laughing and cheering toward the close of the fifth that the gong never heeded and hooted until Referee McGuigan came to the rescue and broke them apart.

The sixth was the worst round of the fight for Attell. Robson cut his mouth, bled his nose and had Abe winded so badly that he clinched with joy at every opportunity. Near the close of the round Abe made a whirlwind finish and backed Robson all over the ring, using all sorts of wallops and bringing the crowd howling to their feet.

The fight by rounds follows:

ROUND ONE.

The men fiddled for half a minute. They then went to a clinch. They fought along the ropes without much damage. Then Robson put a right left on Attell's face. Robson dug a right to the kidneys and then jabbed a left to the face. Attell jolted three short rights to the chin. They sparred for a few seconds. Some hard infighting followed. Attell hooked a left to the face and then jabbed a left to Robson's eye. Attell repeated with his left and then shot it to the Englishman's mouth with the bell.

ROUND TWO.

Attell put a light left to Robson's neck. Robson came back with a left jab to the nose. They exchanged rights to the jaw, and Robson sent both hands to Attell's head. Abe jabbed three stiff lefts to Robson's face, and the Britisher drove both hands into Abe's stomach. Robson swung his right to Attell's ear, and Abe jabbed his nose twice with his left. Robson again swung his right to the ear and followed it with two left jabs to Abe's mouth. Robson again scored with his right on Attell's heart, and Abe looked two lefts to the Briton's face. Attell landed a left jab on Robson's mouth and another to the nose. Robson twice hooked his left to Abe's jaw and jabbed Abe's nose with his left. Robson sent two straight lefts to Attell's mouth. He was beating Attell at their latter's own game here. He then drove his right to the heart. Robson hooked two lefts to the face at the bell.

ROUND THREE.

They exchanged left jabs to the face. Robson drove a hard right to Abe's heart. The Briton then put right and left to Attell's jaw in a clinch, until Abe grabbed and held on. Robson hooked a couple of lefts to the jaw and they clinched again. Attell twice reached the face with straight lefts. He then put another on Robson's nose. Robson came back at Abe's mouth with a left and then put a right on Attell's heart. They had another long clinch without any damage to either. They exchanged left jabs to the face. Then they tried to fix their mouths. Robson got to Abe's nose twice with a left at the bell.

ROUND FOUR.

Robson smashed his right on Abe's heart as they came together. They traded lefts on the Briton's face. Robson sent three lefts to the jaw and avoided the returns. They exchanged lefts to the face. Robson drove another right to Attell's jaw and the champion broke ground. Abe came back and jabbed Rob's face with a fast left, but Robson threw three jumping punches with a straight left. The Briton hooked two lefts to Abe's jaw and Attell reached Robson's face with a light left and they exchanged left jabs to the nose. Robson hooked a left to the chin and Attell jabbed his face twice with a left. They exchanged left jabs to the face. Robson swung his left to Abe's mouth and then crossed his right jab on Attell's face. Attell put a light left on the Briton's face at the gong.

ROUND FIVE.

They came out of their corners and rushed to a clinch. Attell jabbed Robson's ear with a left. Robson smashed his right to Attell's face and then sent his right to Abe's heart. They exchanged lefts to the face. Robson drove three lefts his left hard into Attell's face without return. Attell jabbed a left to the face and they clinched. They exchanged lefts to the face and Robson drove two lefts to the face. Attell hooked his left to the jaw. They exchanged rights to the jaw. Robson sent a light left to the face and they exchanged left jabs. Robson swung a hard right to the jaw and Attell traded lefts to the wind. Robson jabbed two hard lefts to Abe's face at the gong.

ROUND SIX.

They traded lefts to the face as they came out of their corners and Attell put a left on the Britten's mouth. Robson sent a light left to the nose and then put a hard right to the ribs. Attell drove his right to Robson's chin and Robson traded left to Abe's wind. They exchanged left swings to the jaw and Robson sent his right to the heart. Again they traded lefts to the face and rights to the body. Robson jabbed two lefts to the face and Attell swung both hands hard to the wind. Robson put a light right on the nose. Abe jabbed his face with a left twice. Attell then fought like a cornered dog and put rights and lefts on Robson's jaw. He jabbed him repeatedly without return and had the crowd cheering wildly at the finish.

BRIGGS AND SIEGER FIGHT TO A DRAW

Special to the Boston American.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 4.—Jimmy Briggs of Chelsea and Charley Sieger of Hoboken, N. J., fought fifteen of the hardest rounds ever seen by the fighting fraternity at the Standard Athletic Club at Lymansville last night, and there were few signs of disapproval over the decision of a draw. It was a case of the boys going the limit of their battling powers, and from the first going it was smash, bang into each other, without any fancy moves.

What advantage there was in the bout belonged to Briggs, as the little Chelsea fighter, in his previous matches, settled down to business at the outset and never let up forcing and stepping in with his lead.

Action Hot from Start.

At battling and lusty punishing he excelled the Italian slasher, and from constant mauling in clinches with his right hand he raised a big lump over Sieger's kidneys and made the skin like raw beef.

Neither boy had any cleverness to show, but needed no urging to keep the action hot from the time they put up their hands.

Briggs was the aggressor and carried his attack from stomaching left hooks to the body and head to short bobs with the right, sounding Sieger's body till he wore a sore expression every time Jimmy plastered him with a rib roaster or wind jammer.

Sieger showed a good left at times, which caught Briggs on the jaw and shook him, but could not stop him from taking the initiative at all times.

It was Sieger who constantly did the hanging on in the clinches to stop Briggs' terrific short arm work on his body. His strongest work was done in getting a Briggs when he came to him.

Briggs was noticeably faster in the last half of the fight and was always ready to mix it, but Sieger was too cautious and refused to take chances at swapping punches at short range, tough as his fighting reputation is.

Briggs at His Best.

Briggs was at his best and showed the same winning qualities that have put him at the top of the lightweight class in this section.

The fans went crazy over the bout, and the referee could hardly be heard from the din that always on imp.

The semi-final bout between George Jesson and young Joe Grim was a tame affair of much importance, as there was considerable feeling over the result. The boys would only agree to winner take all, and they went at it with a bitterness that left no doubt the match was for blood.

At the end of eight rounds there was little to choose between the pair and a draw was called.

The other preliminaries made up the best boxing card the club has ever had.

HUB NATIONALS TO MEET TUFTS AGAIN TODAY

This afternoon the Boston Nationals will again line up against the Tufts College nine at the campus of the latter at Medford. On Saturday the Hub team will play at Lynn.

The Bostons didn't have any difficulty in beating the Tufts collegians yesterday, winning by a score of 11 to 0.

Both teams put up a remarkable fielding game for this time of the year. Each team made a fast double play. The Boston infield showed that it is one of the best in the country by its fast passing.

QUAKERS BEAT ATHLETICS.

PHILADELPHIA, April 4.—The annual Spring series between the Philadelphia major league baseball teams began here yesterday with a victory for the Nationals. The single run made in the game was scored on an error, a sacrifice and a base hit.

BROWN BEATS BOWDOIN.

PROVIDENCE, April 4.—Intercollegiate baseball in New England opened here yesterday, in an interesting game in which Brown defeated Bowdoin by better playing by the score of 8 to 2.

LOU DILLON COLLAPSED IN RACES

NEW YORK, April 4.—Henry K. Devereux of Cleveland, owner of the horse John A. McKerron, testified to-day at the trial of the suit of the Memphis Trotting Association to recover from E. E. Smathers the gold cup won by Major Delmar.

Mr. Devereux said that he saw Lou Dillon in the stall thirty minutes before the race and she was in the pink of condition.

"I saw the mare work three miles," continued the witness, "the last mile in about 2:12. I next saw her come up and I noticed a change in her condition. During the race just after leaving the quarter pole the mare was in the lead. This continued for an eighth of a mile, when the mare fell back. At the half she suddenly stopped. She looked very sick. Her head and ears were drooping and she was still and half closed. She looked greatly depressed. I saw her next morning and she appeared to be her natural self.

MANY NATIONS IN LONG WALK

Athletes from all over the world will probably compete in the events at the Jamestown Exposition. This country, England, Germany and France will represent the long distance walk under-taken in recent years in the "rules" from St. Louis to Jamestown. The distance is nearly three thousand miles. The walk will be finished on the exposition grounds.

P. J. Which is the latest pedestrian announcing his desire to enter in the cross country walk. Walsh is Irish. "Cross-eye" Will A. Smith, another entrant, is English, and Richard C. Belle, the man who pioneered the walk, is American. The men who will walk for Germany and France have not been named yet.

MILTON HIGH LOSES.

Dorchester High defeated Milton High yesterday by the score of 29 to 2, in one of the poorest exhibitions of school base-ball ever played in Dorchester.

Quite the most interesting announcement among the early spring news of tests and trials is the statement coming from the Maxwell-Briscoe Motor Company that preparations are now complete for the comparative fuel economy test, which will take place from Trenton to Atlantic City on Saturday, April 6.

The plan of the company is to run three special cars, one on kerosene, one on alcohol and one on gasoline, thus making the test a logical sequence of the run from Boston, which caused such widespread and favorable comment last January.

The object of the present test will be to establish certain authoritative figures relative to quality, cost and efficiency per ton mile of the three fuels. The simplicity of the arrangements which the Maxwell people have made in preparation for the test will be that the carburetor of the kerosene car will be so arranged as to admit of the admixture of gasoline with the kerosene in certain stated and definite quantities. In this respect the results of the continued research of J. D. Maxwell at Tarrytown with regard to the various hydro-carbons used in internal combustion motors will prove the theories which have been promulgated from time to time by numerous motor automobilists.

Notwithstanding its decrease in quality, gasoline has been constantly increasing in price. In fact, within the last few days a further rise of a cent per gallon was announced. Therefore any test that will bring out the value of the fuel, either as a mixture of kerosene and gasoline, will be of great value to the trade.

Thinks Glidden Tour Will Be Test for West

By J. C. KERRISON.

Charles B. Shanks, sales manager of the Winton Motor Carriage Company, spent the greater part of yesterday in Boston as the guest of A. G. Pfeiffe. Mr. Shanks said there is really no significance in his trip here. He was in the East and just ran over to say "Howdy." The condition of the trade in general is very gratifying to all the manufacturers, but to none more so than to the house of Winton. Mr. Shanks was asked what he thought of the proposed Glidden tour, and if his firm would enter any cars for the same. He said so far as the Winton company was concerned he was not in opposition to say what it would do as regards making entries, the matter had not been officially considered. Personally he thought the proposed route of the tour was a good one, as it brought the East and the Middle West into closer relationship. Heretofore the East had been pretty well exploited by touring parties, and he personally felt that the coming tour would do much towards bringing out the touring possibilities of the West to the men who drive machines for the pleasure thereof.

When a number of oil pipes are supplied from a sight feed indicator on the dash, it is not a bad plan to mark each pipe plainly with the number of drops per minute it should deliver. This information may be taken from the car instructions, remembering that the front and rear bearings of the motor take more oil than the intermediate bearings, and remembering that the gear case needs only a little oil, and the clutch only one or two drops a minute. Naturally the infor-

Lotta's Horses Will Start Season at Norfolk

As presently mapped out the great stable of trotters and pacers owned by the Boston horsewoman and former noted actress, Lotta Crabtree, will make its initial start of the campaign of 1907 at Norfolk, the latter part of May, and from that race along to New York State and West, striking the Grand Circuit at Detroit July 1.

Manager Frank Smith is in hopes to secure the services of Trainer and Driver M. E. McHenry, who did so well with the string last season, in fact, a trade to that effect has almost been consumated.

Last year the Crabtree horses won more money than any one stable racing. During the Winter the string has been strengthened to a large degree, so that it seems certain that only accident or lameness will prevent it winning even more the coming season.

Those campaigners in preparation at Savannah, Ga., where they have been Winter'd, are as follows: Sir Albert, 2:07¼; Nut Boy, 2:07¼; Princine, 2:15¼; Hal Direct, trial of 2:06¾; Stella Oaks, trial of 2:10; 1 entry Sist, trial of 2:10, and Bryce Gibdie, trial of 2:10.

My Star and Nut Boy are so prominently known from their last season's racing as not to need mention, but the trotting mare Princine is counted to go three times in 2:06 to 2:07. Hal Direct is considered by experienced horsemen, who have seen him work at Charter Oak Park, an invincible in the green pacing class, but the stable is particularly strong in the slow pacing events, as it has a full back on, if necessary, Stella Oaks and 1 entry Sist.

HUFF MAY MANAGE PILGRIMS

Special to the Boston American.

URBANA, Ill., April 4.—In all likelihood George A. Huff, Jr., athletic director of the University of Illinois, will be manager of the Boston American baseball team this season.

Huff and President John I. Taylor of the Boston team had a long conference last night, and although neither would say that an agreement was made, it is said on pretty good authority that Huff has practically taken charge of the Hub team.

Huff will have a hard time leaving Illinois, where he has turned out six out of seven championship nines since he has had charge, as his contract does not expire until June 1. However, if he insists leaving before then, he probably can arrange it with the athletic committee.

BOSTON AMERICANS WILL PLAY AGAIN AT DAYTON TO-DAY

Special to the Boston American.

DAYTON, April 4.—In a rather interesting game here, the Boston American team defeated the Dayton team of the Central League by a score of 5 to 4. Jack Jones (Bobbie) was in the box for the visitors and he only allowed the locals four scattered hits, errors being responsible for most of the runs. Bobbie Evans struck out ten men.

The Bostons will play here again to-day.

WELSHMAN TO RACE CHECKERS FOR $100 SIDE

Local road and speedway drivers are greatly interested in the outcome of a match race to be pulled off next week between the pacing gelding Checkers, 2:18½, owned by Solly Wolfson, and the trotting gelding, Welshman, 2:18½, the property of Henry J. Bates, for $100 a side.

The owners of the horses, happening to meet, the conversation drifted to the relative merits of the steeds, finally working around to a discussion, and in the end each was challenging the other to race and so decide the argument. In an instant George Riley was made stakeholder, both principals putting up a substantial forfeit.

It was mutually agreed that the event so bred at Combination Park, and of half mile heats, two in three. The date was not been determined upon, Mr. Bates saying that he was waiting the time for the latter said to-day it would likely come on June 12.

"Happy Jack" Trout has Welshman at the Mystic Club stable at Charles River Speedway preparing him for the match, while Checkers will be trained by Solly or Mr. Wolfson, his driver, now being to the new pair of shoppers. Both owners are to pick out each of whom.

MIKE 'TWIN' ON THE COAST

Notes of the Harness Horses

Fred H. Bulkley of the Dorchester Driving Club and the "Mets" has won thirty-eight blue ribbons in his speedway racing experience. The wood satisfy anybody except Mr. Bulkley. The Dorchester driver is not satisfied with anything short of the coming season, owning a pair capable of defeating Chief Wilkie over the Charles River Speedway course and the pair at Empire Field course. He has about closed the deal for the pair for a half a better than a minute.

The pair can beat 2:10 a long ways, and is headed for the Grand Circuit, is Lady Margaret, 2:10¼, and Lady Bulkley, 2:10¼. The latter has been timed in 2:09 half of thirteen starters at Indianapolis in straight heats, but later lost her record again at Reid, 2:09. Put by 2:10¼, she, the third best over a muddy track at Montgomery, Ala., in the 2:10 class.

CATARRH Can Be Cured

Whether it is of the nose, throat, lungs, stomach, bowels or more delicate organs, catarrh is a constitutional disease and should never fail of attention.

It is a discharge from the mucous membrane when not in a state of inflammation to an impure, commonly scrofulous, condition of the blood.

MY TREATMENT

Cures all forms of catarrh, radically and permanently. It removes the cause and overcomes all the effects.

Whipping the Piano Trust

The Trust hasn't recovered yet from the terrible body blow we gave it lately, that scattered the 2nd Avenue gang to the winds. Trust's leading salesmen are still wandering around in a daze, yet in the lot twenty-seven new upright pianos of our finest and best known piano makers in the East. These pianos are listed to sell at $400 each, in our swoop of two weeks ago we snatched them at prices that made the trade sit up and take notice. Did we do it? Bloodhounds of the Trust, sent to us from the shades of the full retail price, have returned with the twenty-seven of his pianos we would sell all of them to him and move to the public at cut prices. Did we do it? Not on your life as you would notice by a glance at our window that we have twenty-seven of the best pianos made in the world, and you can buy them with the advantage of every one of our makers over the Trust's head. Come on to investigate our sales and buy your piano here from us where you get the best makes at prices that you cannot get elsewhere. We are open every evening. Every piano bought here is fully warranted for a lifetime. Come in Monday with your eyes wide open—and see for yourself.

THE HARRIMAN-ROOSEVELT SCANDAL

A Few Thoughts That It Suggests

Harriman's letter, revealing his business connection with Theodore Roosevelt, when the latter was running for President, AND THE RAISING OF ONE SINGLE CAMPAIGN CONTRIBUTION OF TWO HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS, including some life insurance money, will supply the American public with food for thought for many a day to come.

We learn among other things that the government in the United States just now is ROOT, RYAN and ROOSEVELT, with Ryan the power.

In a very few words Harriman's letter shows that combination of three R's in its working order.

The readers of this newspaper will not be much surprised. We have often told you the part the Tweed lawyer, Root, and his client, Ryan, have been playing in United States affairs.

Harriman said in his famous letter:

> Ryan's success in all his manipulations, traction deals, tobacco combination, manipulation of the State Trust Company into the Morton Trust Company, the Shoe and Leather Bank into the Western National Bank, and then again into the Bank of Commerce—thus covering up his tracks—has been done by the adroit mind of Elihu Root, and this present situation has been brought about by a combination of circumstances which has brought together the Ryan, Root, Roosevelt element.

Do you remember that the Panama Canal was to be built by private contractors? Do you remember that another Ryan lawyer—not Root this time, but Cravath—PREPARED THE BASIS FOR THE CONTRACT WORK?

Do you remember that we said: "If Ryan does not build the canal and get the contract, nobody will!"

Have you noticed since that Ryan didn't get it. AND THAT THE MAN WHO MADE THE LOWEST BID HAS BEEN THROWN OUT! He expressed his opinion of the way he was treated. But he used too many words.

He could have said the whole thing in three words:

ROOT, RYAN and ROOSEVELT.

On Tuesday there was an election in Chicago. An honest man—Judge Dunne—was nominated by the Democrats, and a very different man—Mr. F. A. Busse—was nominated by the Gas Trust, AND THE STREET CAR TRUST, on the Republican side.

Mr. Roosevelt knew perfectly well the character of Mr. Busse. He couldn't help knowing it. FOR MR. LOEB, THE PRESIDENT'S SECRETARY, had seen the file of the Chicago Tribune, describing Mr. Busse's attack with a revolver upon a man in a midnight quarrel.

But that didn't make any difference to Root, RYAN and Roosevelt. The President wrote a letter, one of his typical public letters, NOT THE PRIVATE KIND HE MARKS "PERSONAL" TO MR. HARRIMAN, and he told the people of Chicago that, from his heart, he thought it really necessary for them to elect F. A. Busse.

That surprised many citizens of Chicago. And Mr. Busse barely pulled through by the skin of his teeth, even with this recommendation from the President. He wouldn't have pulled through at all, but would have been snowed under. IF THE PEOPLE OF CHICAGO HAD HAD A CHANCE TWO DAYS SOONER TO READ THAT CHOICE HARRIMAN CORRESPONDENCE, and to understand the Root, RYAN and Roosevelt combination.

Some people in Chicago were puzzled by the President's writing to indorse a man of Busse's character. But they needn't have been puzzled. Busse represents the Traction Trust. Ryan is the head and chief owner of the Traction Trust. Root, who controls Roosevelt and tells him what to do, has spent a large part of his life as the paid agent of Ryan. Ryan wanted Busse in office, and Root had Roosevelt write the letter that Ryan wanted.

The thing is told again in three words—ROOT, RYAN and ROOSEVELT.

WE HAVE THE ACTUAL PROOF THAT MR. ROOSEVELT GOT FROM ONE MAN—HARRIMAN—TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY THOUSAND DOLLARS IN A LUMP FOR HIS CAMPAIGN IN 1904; that he ASKED for it and got it.

He got into a quarrel with Harriman IN THE LAST CAMPAIGN IN NEW YORK STATE BECAUSE HARRIMAN REFUSED TO GIVE HIM ANY MORE MONEY.

HARRIMAN said that Roosevelt didn't keep his promises, SO HE COULDN'T HAVE ANY MORE CASH.

So much for the Harriman and the Roosevelt fight—for the present.

But what about the others?

WHO WERE SOME OF THE OTHER BIG RICH MEN THAT MR. ROOSEVELT ASKED FOR MONEY?

How much did he get from Ryan, for instance? What was the sum that Root named as the proper price for Ryan to contribute?

Ryan could afford to be generous, for one single letter like the one Roosevelt wrote for Busse, in Chicago, was enough to give Ryan Chicago's streets and pay him back millions.

Ryan could be very generous indeed, FOR THE RIGHT TO EXPLOIT NEW YORK CITY AS THE INTIMATE FRIEND OF ROOSEVELT is worth tens of millions.

It would be very interesting to know what Ryan wrote to the President and what the President wrote to Ryan. AND WHAT RYAN PAID.

Did Ryan get an invitation to come on and blue pencil the message? Quite likely.

There were others also. Do you remember the famous visit that the bountiful, sweet-smelling Tweed lawyer, Root, made to Pierpont Morgan's yacht? What was the result of that visit? Were there any Roosevelt letters marked "PERSONAL" preceding that?

What did Mr. Morgan contribute? What was HIS share? We now know how angry Harriman is at the President. He paid his good money, but didn't get what he wanted.

Ryan and Root are against Harriman, and got the goods Harriman paid for.

Did Morgan get his, or does he also feel that he has been cheated out of a large campaign contribution.

Truly it is a nice picture that this Harriman-Roosevelt scandal puts before the people. It is a pleasant thing for the American voters to learn that they are ruled by a new three R's, ROOT, RYAN and ROOSEVELT.

However, they had to know it sooner or later. The hollow pretense, the high-mindedness, the whole sham and shame, was bound to be known.

But really is worse than was anticipated, even by those that knew THE REAL ROOSEVELT best. It was worse than was thought, even by those that knew the kind of adviser Roosevelt has in Root, that knew the Tweed-like nature of Root, the Tweed lawyer. There never has been a greater revelation of hypocrisy in modern politics.

Readers, you remember in the campaign last year, when Mr. Sherman, who got those Roosevelt letters, was proudly slapping his chest and asking for ONE DOLLAR CONTRIBUTIONS?

Do you remember how Roosevelt was posing as the enemy of contributions from corporations?

Do you remember how he was denouncing those men revealed in the insurance scandal?

Do you remember how the grand, loyal army of Republicans were asked to each contribute ONE dollar, no more, AND NO CORPORATION WAS TO CONTRIBUTE A CENT? Of course you do.

And now, do you see these letters which Mr. Roosevelt writes to Sherman, AND DO YOU SEE THAT SHERMAN WENT STRAIGHT TO HARRIMAN, AFTER THE INSURANCE REVELATIONS, AND, AS ROOSEVELT'S REPRESENTATIVE, ASKED HIM FOR MORE CORPORATION CASH TO HELP THE REPUBLICAN FIGHT?

And do you notice that Mr. Roosevelt in his letters to Sherman makes no complaint of this? On the contrary, when Sherman writes to him, substantially, "I have been trying to get cash out of Harriman and can't," Roosevelt writes back, defending himself against Harriman's charges, evidently much hurt to think that the big corporation man was not again contributing.

It is a pretty mess to come out of so sanctimonious an atmosphere, isn't it?

IS MR. COMMON PEOPLE INSANE?

They Discover That White and Colored Goods Do Not Wash Well Together

Peanuts in the Congo

By Wex Jones

Thomas F. Ryan is to raise peanuts in the Congo.—News Item.

CAN'T you see the guileless native
as he sits beside his hut,
Not a stitch upon his body, not a care upon his mind,
Drinking when he's thirsty from a
handy cocoanut,
And sleeping like a baby when on
cocoanut he's dined,
And not a single peanut in the Congo?

CAN'T you see the happy native always snoozing at his ease,
Never in a rush to get from this place up to that,
Taking all advantage of every cooling breeze,
And happy as a King can be, reclining on his mat,
And not a single peanut in the Congo?

AND can't you see that native with "enterprise" on tap, Working like a truck horse just to earn his daily board,
With an Inter-Jungle subway where he hangs unto a strap
And adding many millions to Ryan's swollen hoard,
Who is raising Cain and peanuts in the Congo?

Ella Wheeler Wilcox

She Says That Unselfishness Is the One Thing Most Needed to Make a Success of Marriage

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal-Examiner

ONE day in Holland I saw twenty couples married in a half hour. Here in Paris, at the beautiful old St. Augustine Church, I saw one young couple go through only an hour's "manoeuvres," and even then the bride and groom did not seem to be really wedded. There were still all sorts of church and state proceedings to go through.

I could not help wondering if this complicated marriage ceremony of France would prove as binding as the quick despatch process of Holland.

Divorce is growing more and more frequent in France, while in Holland it is an unpopular occurrence.

Trial Marriages

THE proposition of Eliza Clews Parsons in her book, "The Family," to make marriage a trial ceremony, seems to suggest unnecessary trouble and expense for men and women.

Why take the time to go through a marriage service at all, if the vows are to be of such elastic quality? Surely the "common-law-wife" would occupy as dignified a position before the world as the "wife on trial."

Thousands of happy men and women to-day are going down into the valley of old age, loving and beloved, who have experienced periods of discord and temporary disillusionment in their early married lives.

It is said by the majority of wedded people that the first two years of domestic life are the most difficult to pass through.

The divergence of ideas on the various problems which life presents, owing to opposite influences of education, render time and association necessary to bring about a sympathetic common ground of understanding.

Adjustment Necessary

TWO watches from the same factory need careful adjustment before they can be made to keep exact time.

How much more then do two people, from different human factories, need care and adjustment before they move in unison?

Few business associates have found it possible to make a success of an enterprise without more or less misunderstandings.

Had they dissolved partnership at the first sign of discord there would have been no success achieved.

Because they had contracted to be associates for a certain period of time they bridged over their difficulties and eventually forgot them.

The man and woman who took each other "on trial" would be pretty sure to separate at the first misunderstanding.

And the first magnetic attraction experienced by either would be encouraged into a flame of passion until it burned its bridges and left only blackened ruins behind.

Marriage can never be made a success by such a process.

There is just one way, and one alone, for marriage to be made sacred, respectable and successful.

That is by the realization of the contracting parties that life means something besides the gratification of every personal impulse and desire, and that self-respect and development of character are of greater value in the long run than what is generally termed happiness.

Happiness is understood by many young people to mean doing exactly as they want to do at all times and never being obliged to sacrifice a desire or overcome an impulse for the sake of another.

I know, few people will acknowledge that this is their idea of happiness, but a little investigation of their lives proves it to be so.

Most young women marry with the question uppermost in their minds, "Will he be able to make me happy always?"

The True Solution

MANY young men ask a similar question of their hearts when contemplating marriage. But I believe more men than women begin marriage with unselfish ideas.

Instead, the question should be, "Will I be able to make him or her happy?"

Once the query takes that form the problem is half solved.

The woman who believes she will be satisfied so long as she can make her husband happy is not going to find much time for brooding over his failures to give her happiness. She will not see his failures unless they are too flagrant.

And the same may be said of the man.

The continual wish and effort to give happiness creates it in the heart of the thinker and tryer.

And it arouses a similar purpose in the heart of the object unless that object is wholly vicious and degenerate.

Unselfishness—selflessness—not license, is needed to make marriage a success.
